VINCENT's JOTTINGS

By VINCENT D' SOUZA

There are times when you want to pause. Or make time for yourself.

Some hit the gym. Some go for a walk in the park. Some take the lift to the terrace. Some shut themselves up in their bedroom.

I head to my choice, quiet restaurants. There are a few go-to-spots all across the city on my list. In Parry's Corner, in Adyar, in Mylapore, in Royapettah, in Egmore.

Most often I am at the restaurant of Hotel Maris. Between 4 and 6.30 pm, this place is sparse. So I always get my table, at the far, north-west corner, a nice point to survey all and yet be to yourself. Two idlis is all I order. The plate comes with two containers of their famed sambhar. This, with their traditionally-ground chutneys, are certainly mood elevators!

The stewards allow you to just be. Once they know you are here to be to yourself - and anyway, there aren't too many hungry folks streaming in then.

In Egmore, the famed Abhinandan restaurant of Hotel Ashoka is just the place to take a break. They also let you be. Murugan Idli on Armenian Street on a post 7 p.m. weekday is also the spot to go to.

I know a few people who head to Sangeetha's in R. A. Puram for a cup of coffee - people across the city continue to debate if the coffee here is the best. But the people who I know are here because they want to pause, to take a break from the hum-drum. And the space seems to allow them to do so.

Not everybody may afford a restaurant. Or find convenient spaces to be yourself. But every neighbourhood needs such spaces - be they parks, playgrounds or quiet, verdant streets.

There are a set of people who find the halls of Bharatiya Vidya Bhavan convenient spaces to pause, to be away from it all. Be to themselves. The back rows or seats on either flanks are just the spots they sink into, for some music on an evening.

One wishes we also had good playgrounds in all zones of the city. And small galleries. Where we can sit and watch local teams train and have friendly matches and we can just sit and look or clap.

Subhasree Thanikachalam-curated concert was excellent, BVB arrangements are good

Full marks to Bharatiya Vidya Bhavan for the way they organised the opening programme of its festival - by Subhasree Thanikachalam and artistes. The main hall and balcony were full and the crowd kept coming. The staff, both women and men, patiently arranged for additional chairs. The organizing committee also said that additional TV screens would be set up outside the hall so that people can watch the programmes. Speaks of the large heartedness of the members of this great institution. The concert was excellent. All three singers - Santosh Subramanian, Samanvitha and Rishipriya sang exceptionally, ably supported by the orchestra

- C. Sundararaja

Canteens at Season time

It is a good idea to restrict admission to canteens in sabha premises for the Season only to ticket holders. The focus must be less on canteens and more on concerts. However, the business angle may not support the idea - caterers are here to do business and grow it.

- Radhika P.

On Vamanan's talks, books

The talk on music director M. S. Vishwanathan by Vamanan Narasimhan at Arkay Centre was welcome. Where can we get the books that Vamanan has written?

- Bhanu Moorthy

< Note / Vamanan's contact - 94452 96503 - He lives In Abiramapuram

Appreciation for Vidya Mandir initiative

The initiative by Vidya Mandir to reach out to poor families for Deepavali is good. NGOs like Yuva Bharati must initiate these efforts regularly. Teen children in such colonies also need to be involved.

- M. C. Madhavan

Headaches for Rasikas this Season

Work on Chennai Metro will again impact the movement of rasikas during the December Season. Accessing venues like Srinivasa Sastri Hall, Arkay Centre and Raga Sudha Hall is challenging because of the traffic diversions; which means rasikas have to shell out more for auto rides.

- R. Raman

MYLAPORE REWIND

Councillors of Mylapore zone take part in Cleanliness drive (Aug. 23, 1997)

All the councillors from Zone X participated in a cleanliness drive organised by Chennai Corporation's zonal office.

In each ward, the local councillor, along with the MLA, set the exercise in motion. Students in Chennai Corporation schools also joined the activity. The students took out a procession to generate awareness about literacy programmes. Pitching in, the students of Raja Muthiah School swept the school zone clean.

Talk on Rukmini Lakshmipathy (Aug. 30, 1997)

At a city event, gynaecologist Dr. Indira Ramamurthy spoke about her mother, Rukmini Lakshmipathy, who was jailed in Vellore for participating in the Salt Satyagraha. Dr. Indira said her mother met Gandhiji at Robinson Park in the city, where he was mobilising funds for Harijan welfare. Her mother gave all her jewellery, Indira recalled. On another occasion, when Indira's brother was very ill, her mother refused to return home, Indira recollected. She was confident that her husband, Dr. Lakshmipathy, could manage the crisis. It was only when the illness took a critical turn that she rushed back home. She, however, went back when her son was declared out of danger.

Subhasree Thanikachalam and artistes wow packed hall as BVB launches its fest

By Our Edit Team

When over 1000 people emptied from the campus of Bharatiya Vidya Bhavan on that Friday night (Nov.20), around 9 p.m., the auto drivers waiting for 'savaris' on East Mada Street were wondering about the nature of the show which had brought this many people. There was a traffic jam on the street and Sri Karpagambal Mess, on the other side, did not have tables free for diners looking for a quick tiffin.

It was a show to launch the annual December Season festival of music and dance of the Bhavan. And the packed and standees inside the hall was for a unique concert by the QFR team headed by Subhasree Thanikachalam.

Even chief guest B. K. Krishnaraj Vanavarayar, vice president of Bhavan worldwide, lightly said that he was aware that the packed hall was not for his speech (which was quite illuminating and timely, on the founding and role of the Bhavan) but for the concert.

The QFR concert was unique in the sense that Subhasree drew from musical traditions down the centuries from different parts of India and their influence on music on Tamil film music; best illustrated in all the evening's songs – leading from Mughal court music, qawali and dhrupad, Telugu folk and more.

Subhasree would have liked a more excited audience, clapping and shaking their bodies in their seats; that didn't happen but each song got a big round of applause. Even from the dozen off people seated on the stage. And not many people left their seats at 8.30 p.m., a time when many rasikas head out for tiffin and TV serials.

The festival opened with a grand nagaswaram recital by the much-decorated Seshampatti Sivalingam and his group.

There are two concerts daily at Bhavan's main– three on weekends - and many top ranking artistes are featured: admission is free.

RAPRA Kids Club celebrated Children's Day on November 14 with a fun-filled evening of games and fun in R. A. Puram. Adding a personal touch, one of the residents, who has been teaching the children to solve the Rubik's Cube, presented each child with a beautiful handmade woollen name tag.

Popcorn, cupcakes and other goodies were served. The highlight was the special gifts presented by the R A Puram Residents' Association president, Dr.R.Chandrasekaran to the guests. He also shared his childhood experiences, recalling a time when radio was the only source of entertainment and the popular children's programme on All India 'Pappa Malar' brought songs, stories and talks into their homes.

The RAPRA Kids Club is open to all children – workshops, fun events and more are organised at a local venue.

Moods of the Season

By Our Edit Team

Bharatiya Vidya Bhavan starts its version of the December Season festival early – late November and it not only features a long list of concerts but signs up some top notch artistes who are also happy to perform here.

Since the concerts are free, accessible and present top artistes, rasikas pack the main hall. For some concerts this far, extra chairs were not enough to accommodate rasikas.

Last Sunday, for example, save for some 10 empty seats, the hall was packed for Prince Rama Varma's concert – he has a way of not only presenting songs from across India but also shares tidbits, makes people light and even gets them to join in the singing.

By the time his concert was winding down, more rasikas flooded the hall – for Vijay Siva's concert.

Bhavan has provided TV screens in its lobby and yard for rasikas who cannot find space in the hall to enjoy the concerts here. And it serves snacks just before the evening concerts begin.

The Trinity Arts Festival held at R. R. Sabha had more space for young dancers, mostly solo recitals. Though the concerts were held in the smaller hall, the wellwishers, friends and family of these dancers packed the space - encouraging signs for the artistes.

Dancer invites Mylapore hawkers to her concert

Bharatnatyam dancer Meghana Krishnan likes to go beyond the stage.

Her social pages show her in her costume around the hawkers of the Mada Streets of Mylapore.

For her concert under the Trinity Arts Festival banner,at R R Sabha, Nov.22 at 1.45 p.m. Meghana walked around Sri Kapali Temple zone, and handed out her flyers for this concert to the hawkers, some of whom she patronises.

And she shot videos of this effort and posted them online and they did create some buzz.

Meghana said she knows some hawkers personally so it was natural for her to also invite them!

Road caves in, restored now

By Baskar Seshadri

A section of Luz Church Road caved in this week - this happened opposite Ranade Library / Srinivasa Sastri Hall. Two and three wheelers were not allowed to take this section of the road from the R. H. Road side.

The problem has been attended to and vehicles allowed to drive this way.

This is the zone of Chennai Metro's massive project; where two stations are to be built for two rail lines; one north-south and one east-west.
