Big Day for Tamil Theatre Troupes

By Our Edit Team

There was a party-like mood across the plain auditorium of Mylapore Fine Arts Club (MFAC) on June 1 evening. It was a big evening for Tamil, middle-of-the road theatre groups. A day when awards were handed out to the bests in a theatre fest called Kodai Nataka Vizha (35th edition) that Kartik Fine Arts sabha hosts annually in May.

It could have been a nice gala; the artistes were dressed for the occasion - for it was an evening to applaud actors, directors, stage hands and the rest.

There were a host of awards. 33 in all, with 15 rolling trophies.

Some trophies sparkled in the arc lights. And one winner carried a large cup across the hall long after the ceremony. The man was part of the team which got up a well designed set - a section of a train - on the stage for a play by Legally Yours that didn't pick up speed.

The Dummies Drama team was present in full strength; cameraman and cheer-leaders. They rooted lustily as one of theirs walked up to receive a trophy /certificate; they won the maximum number of awards that evening.

It was also an evening to recognise two stalwarts of theatre with special awards - P. Muthkumaran and Dummies Drama troupe for their play 'Thanim-AI'.

Kartik Fine Arts also presented Rs.10,000 and Rs.5,000 to two theatre groups, Koothapiran's Navabharath Theatres and Three Entertains; they staged multiple shows of their 2025 award-winning plays in the calendar year.

It was an event that should have ended with a party, maybe high tea - letting artistes celebrate, mingle and unwind.

It ended with a play for the fairly packed hall, all seniors.

Y. Gee Mahendra did a promo for his forthcoming film 'Charukesi' and then staged 'Varadu Kutty - Paritchaikku Neramachu 2' - in which he took pot-shots at state politics, from TASMACH to the mango symbol and a little more, in between.
