VINCENT'S JOTTINGS

By VINCENT D' SOUZA

We know this. Our children need all those lessons and lectures in the classroom.

But the hands-on training is priceless.

Summertime holidays can be learning and earning time.

In school, Dad invited me to a fortnight's work at his company's godown of medicines. Pasting stickers on bottles. It got me some pocket money. I also learnt how to interact with contract labour. Lessons that held well when I ran my business.

In college, training at a rag of a weekly newspaper, my Ed sent me down to the print shop floor. Two lessons learnt - the mental outlook of press staff and the ideas that the pre-press team had about layouts suggested by the Ed.

And just after college, at The Indian Express, assigned to produce the weekly Cinema page, I learnt many lessons on the pre-press floor. You allowed the staff to feast on the film stills and then worked hand-in-hand in designing the page. And here, I learnt the importance of 'white space' in design - from those veterans.

There are many ways in which our teens can spend some days this May, on hands-on education. For example, turn to some institutions whom we must request to 'open'.

Can our Mylapore zone colleges let their laboratories be learning zones for seven / ten days for schoolers?

Check in with The Zoological Survey of India, the Central Institute of Brackishwater Aquaculture, and The Sanskrit College. Would they admit schoolers to short-term training on campus?

Sign up for some real shop-experience. For all those whose interest is management, finance, accountancy and retail.

Send your sons and daughters to say, Vivek or Giri Trading. Send them to the neighbourhood restaurant or pharmacy. Offer your young one's services to the local bakery like Winners or a supermarket like White Rose.

Imagine the amazing experience the young ones will have across seven days. The education and the challenges. Perhaps they will also be paid some pocket money! And be given a certificate of experience.

Any sensible educator and employer will appreciate this record of a young one.

This takes me to an anecdote my colleague Parameshwaran shared some time ago. Walking down a Mylapore inner street, he heeded a "Saar!" call; he turned and recognised a youth sitting behind the cash register of a pharmacy. This boy had attended a course Paramesh taught on the basics in computers that Mylapore Times Charitable Trust runs at a local school. The boy had discontinued studies and his basic skills got him this job.

Why simple alankaram for swami . . .

This is more on your report on the 'simplest alankaram of Kapali-swami'. After 8 hours of being awake on Vrishabha vahanam, on the next day, the deities are given 'mangala snansm' (oil bath) to cool their system. Then the deities are taken in a procession in 'shukshuma roopam' - invisible manner. Hence the white attire, no grand alankaram and no vahanam.

'Less known' events of utsavam

We had been in Mylapore and had attended the Panguni fest for many years, but never knew about the enactment of the tiff between the 'divine couple' that S. Prabhu reported on and was enacted outside the temple as the last formal event. Thanks Mylapore Times team for this article.

Wow!

Wonderful coverage in Mylapore Times of the utsavam, both on video and in the photos. Thanks a lot; as I am away from Mylapore I felt satisfied as I have not missed any of the events.

The charm of Panguni festival, a thing of the past

As a third-generation family member residing at South Mada Street, the Panguni festival brings back fond memories. During the 70s, when I was in college, I used to wait eagerly for this festival. My father used to call his family members to our house and they would arrive 3/4 days in advance. During the festival, our house would have 30 to 40 family members.

Our family, led by my father, would offer aarthi to the deities as they crossed our place, next to the Vysarpadi Chattram. Now, I am following my father's footsteps. Our service of providing annadanam continues. As more people are providing annadanam, food can be seen scattered on the road, creating civic issues. I feel that charm of the festival is now missing as the customs and practices have changed.

MY STORY

Special Children Love Music. And dance too. That is 'Tarang'

By USHA SURESH

'Tarang' was an idea that V-Excel's founder Dr. Vasudha Prakash floated (V-Excel aims to train special children). Bombay Jayashri launched the event. The idea was to host concerts by artistes who would sing for our special children, their guardians and others. Once a month. This began sometime in 2011. I joined V-Excel in 2015 and I took charge of 'Tarang' in 2018.

I am a keen Carnatic music student and rasika. I accompany vocalist Dr. S. Sowmya on the tambura and have done so for 12 years. Much credit goes to Sowmya for educating me.

The 'Tarang' event is attended by the akkas who are the helpers for V-Excel kids, the kids, their guardians and parents and guests. How can the show really satisfy them well? I curated popular, classic Tamil songs for the concerts. That worked.

Then we chose to have thematic concerts - based, say on Sri Krishna Jayanthi. Then, we introduced a mix of accompaniments for concerts. For example, keyboard and mridangam in one show; drums and violin in another. Over time, our children got introduced to different rhythmic instruments.

Special children may be allergic to sound...loudish sound. But they love music. They got introduced to different sounds, different instruments.

Then came the pandemic time lockdown. I didn't want Tarang to be suspended.

I got artistes who star in the 'Super Singers' show. Weekly, one artiste sang live on our YouTube channel and our children and their wards could tune in. These were soft, film-based songs; for variety, we also added bhajans. This went on for two years.

Then we got back to our monthly shows at Bhavans, Mylapore. We now introduced dance recitals: we wanted to see how the kids reacted to say, changing and limited stage lighting and to dance movement. We refrained from the classical items and chose film songs based on ragas. Dancer Deepthi Ravichandran helped curate and present this.

The Tarang shows have had many positives - the kids can request their own songs, they can clap, sing and dance too. We invite our kids to give the mementos to artistes. They begin to socialise - with artistes, with guests . . . and this is important. Behavioural changes happen. Their parents are happy.

And people who walk in for the show, get to understand the issues around special children, are made aware and can spread the word of how change is possible and how we can be inclusive.

Samyuktha badly missed Arthanareeswarar alankaram but loved the Mohini dance

By S. Prabhu

Over the next month, Mylapore resident V Samyuktha will be appearing for the chartered accountancy (CA) Inter examination. This year, the Rama Navami utsavam at her ancestral home in Elleri near Cuddalore coincided with the early part of the Panguni Utsavam. That meant she had to miss her favourite, fourth day alankaram at Sri Kapaleeswarar Temple.

She told Mylapore Times this week that while she was physically present 200 kms away, her mind on the third morning of the Panguni Utsavam was all on how Kapaleeswarar would be looking atop the Adikaara Nandi.

While that morning passed with just the 'missing' thoughts, on the fourth evening, she says she was almost in tears at not being able to be present in front of the raja gopuram to watch the handsome Kapaleeswarar in the Arthanareeswarar alankaram atop the Naga vahana.

"The Arthanareeswarar alankaram and the dance in front of the raja gopuram was the one I missed the most at this year's utsavam," she said.

But the moment she landed on East Mada Street on the morning of the chariot procession last Monday, she soaked in. "I ran to the ther for a darshan of Kapaleeswarar. Shiva vadyam and the recital of Thiruppugazhi gave a great devotional feeling," she said.

Arubathumoovar returning close to midnight to Thevaram verses was another special experience for her.

Samyuktha said that the Mohini dance of Karpagambal on West Mada Street is her all-time favourite at the Panguni Utsavam and she enjoyed this performance the most this year.

She also said that she watched the enactment of the Thiru Oodal for the first time and enjoyed Sundarar's mediatory role.

With her annual trips to Elleri for the Rama Navami utsavam, Samyuktha says she has now developed a deep interest in bhajanai and Naama Sankeerthanam and wants to explore such presentations with bhagavathas in the future.

For now though, she will focus on the CA exams.

The final act of Panguni utsavam: Sundarar mediates between 'divine' couple

After a two-hour procession around the Mada Streets, a 'big fight' erupted between Karpagambal and Kapaleeswarar and it was left to Sundara Moorthy Nayanar to mediate and bring them together again.

The episode from Thiru Oodal Pura-nam was played out late on a Friday evening a day after the flag was brought down at the Panguni Utsavam at Sri Kapaleeswarar Temple.

It all seemed fine on Thursday evening with the grand Thiru Kalyanam and late night Ravana Vahana procession to the tunes of mukha veena.

24 hours later, as it so often happens with couples, Karpagambal took strong objection to Kapaleeswarar holding Ganga secretly atop his head.

Just after 10 p.m., all of a sudden Karpagambal shot past Kapaleeswarar to the 16-pillar mandapam while he stayed back near the chariot, shocked at this sudden and hasty retreat of his consort.

It was then that Kapaleeswarar pulled in his friend and one of the four famous saint-poets, Sundara Moorthy nayanar to check the reason for Ambal's anger and to bring her back.

For the next half hour or so, this historical episode was played out between the 16-pillar mandapam and the chariot side with Sundarar going back and forth between Ambal and the Swami playing a conciliatory role.

Sannidhi Street seemed like a live drama stage.

Othuvar Vageesan anchored the enactment, reading out Ambal's message to Kapaleeswarar and his defense to Ambal.

Sundarar mediates . . .

● Contd. from page 5

While Ambal reasoned that the Lord having Ganga secretly on his head was unpardonable, Swamy said he had tanned waiting in the hot sun.

Finally Kapaleeswarar asked Sundarar to play out the Saama Veda before Ambal to cool her, reasoning out that even Ravana did so after he was crushed under Mount Kailasa by his big toe.

After three rounds, Ambal finally relented and made her way to the chariot side to take her place beside Kapaleeswarar much to the delight of the group of devotees who had gathered near the chariot to watch the enactment of this episode.

It was past 11 p.m. when the pancha moorthy idols made their way into the temple. Interestingly, that week, on the occasion of Panguni Uthiram, a similar episode was played out at the Ranganathaswamy Temple in Srirangam with Nam Azhvaar playing a mediatory role to sort out the differences between Ranganthaswamy and Ranganayaki thayar

“Divine feeling to present kutcheri at Kapali Temple”

Says Srikrishna Mohan of Trichur Bros.

By S. Prabhu

Srikrishna Mohan and Ramkumar Mohan, popularly known as Trichur Brothers, enthralled the audience with a devotional two and a half hour kutcheri at the Navarathri mandapam at Sri Kapali Temple on Tuesday evening.

The event was part of the 12-day Vidyaatri music and dance fest following the 10-day Panguni utsavam that ended last Thursday.

Srikrishna Mohan, the elder of the Trichur Brothers told Mylapore Times that it gives him and his brother a divine feeling to be performing at the Kapaleeswarar Temple.

“We have been performing here for four years and it is always a special and divine feeling. Mylapore is the centre of Carnatic music and to have the opportunity to present a kutcheri within the Kapaleeswarar Temple is great.

It is a completely different atmosphere inside the temple. The entire audience sitting till the very end adds to the devotional element.”

72-year-old Vathsala has been a fan of Trichur Brothers for the last 10 years, by her admission.

She said, after the concert, “Ever since we saw them perform in January 2013 in front of the 16-pillar mandapam at the Mylapore Festival, my husband and I have become their fans. We have not missed a single kutcheri that they have presented at the Kapaleeswarar Temple since then.

“This evening, I was thrilled when they presented my favourite song Naan Oru Vilayaattu Bommaiya. Their presentation of Dinamani Vamsam and Kapaleeswarar was also very pleasing.”

Towards the end of the duo’s concert, their rendition of Panduranga Jai Jai got the audience humming to the song.

Following court order, civic workers dismantle and cart away stalls on and off Marina Loop Road

By Our Edit Team

Civic workers in large numbers, backed by a large posse of police personnel, began to dismantle and cart away all the makeshift stalls on one side of the Marina Loop Road on Wednesday morning.

They also employed JCBs to knock down and scoop up the bunk shops and makeshift huts.

This follows an order by a Bench of Madras High Court hearing a petition that complains about the mess that the hawkers are creating on this road, hampering free flow of vehicles and being the cause of accidents.

The judges hearing this case asked Greater Chennai Corporation (GCC) to evict all hawkers on the carriageway and report to it by April 18. They issued the direction on a suo motu public interest litigation petition taken up by the court.

The GCC was also asked to find out if the seafood stalls (at south end of this road) had statutory licenses to cook and sell food and report this to the court and that it would then take a call on this issue.

On Wednesday morning, while the fish hawker stalls that are raised on sand near the Light House were left untouched by civic workers, all the bunks and stalls on the other side of the road, adjoining the colonies, were removed.

Learn Golf indoor: in Alwarpet

By Our Edit Team

An indoor golf centre - Golfer's Edge Chennai - has opened in Alwarpet recently. This fully air-conditioned indoor facility aspires to make learning golf affordable, accessible and entertaining to new players.

With a 170-sq-foot turf, the centre features an ultra-realistic HD virtual simulator and offers customized coaching sessions, memberships and special programmes for adults and children.

Right now, there is a summer camp for kids between 7 and 12 years. For the summer camp and for coaching of kids, Golfer's Edge Chennai has partnered with Golphin, a company from Scotland that designs and manufactures junior golf sets and will use Golphin's proprietary mobile app - MyPathway-2Golf to make learning fun.

Personalised and group lessons from licensed coaches are available at flexible timings. Corporate team events for smaller groups can also be held there. GEC's virtual golf simulator offers this - features practice modes to replicate a real golf driving range experience, offers over 150000 golf courses from around the world; with a high-speed tracking camera and live analysis of every swing, chip and putt, the simulator offers a very real golfing experience to learn and improve the game.

The simulator also offers numerous fun games such as Footie Golf, Golf Bowling, Gallery Golf and Golf Darts, to name a few, to make the experience extra fun and competitive.

Address: Golfer's Edge, Chennai; 14, Eldams Road, opposite C. P. Art Centre, Alwarpet. Ph: 9342272041
