People have been offering flowers and prayers at the St Thomas Cathedral in San Thome to the late Pope Francis since his passing on Monday, April 21. A photo of the late Pope was set up in front of the altar at the cathedral with candles flanking either side and a table with a bowl of flowers that people could offer in tribute.

Tholkappiya Poonga: skywalk work in final stage

By Our Edit Team

Tholkappiya Poonga (formerly called Adyar Poonga) has been the centre of a big-budget project the past few months. Less has been known to the public since the perimeter of this restored green zone is very secure and the state-managed Chennai Rivers Restoration Trust (CRRT) that manages this project rarely shares information.

What is evident is the massive boundary wall with large arches and mod lighting that has been erected on the D. G. S. Dhinakaran Road side of the Poonga in R. A. Puram, which is the main entrance to the eco-campus. One can also spot newly-constructed spaces for a cafe and reception centre here. Work on a skywalk that is supposed to allow Poonga visitors and staff to gain access from the west zone of the Poonga to the east zone which has been partly restored, is in its final stage

The past week, the floor for the walkway was being laid across the beams constructed inside the Poonga zone and above the main road at the Pattinapakkam traffic signals junction.

Also, a section of D. G. S. Dhinakaran Road has been barricaded to carry out major civic work - laying huge pipes that will allow water to flow both ways in and out of the two zones of the Poonga.

This is the water created by the Adyar river's estuarine system as well as rainwater that collects inside the Poonga.

The Poonga has been closed to visitors for many weeks now. A state minister who is in charge of this subject has said in the state Assembly that the project here will be over in April. Since summer holidays have begun, children are keen to visit the Poonga.

VINCENT'S JOTTINGS

By VINCENT D' SOUZA

Art and craft teacher Jayashree Narayanan was talking to me about her work of recent times. She has been busy in the mornings handling classes or workshops at city colleges for women. And for an hour in the evening, she teaches Tanjore painting, online, to a pan India group.

Jayashree is the kind of teacher who can quickly draw up a workshop programme which suits the need of the hour - be it junior school children, housewives in a kuppam or college-going girls.

She told me of how more and more people who have a wedding in the family are looking for micro 'return gift' pieces that allow guests to also have some fun or an experience.

Of how at a recent wedding, she was assigned to guide guests to pick up a small cloth bag, choose from a set of pre-carved images in wood, dip it in paint and press them on the bag each had chosen to take home.

Jayashree says the counter was crowded soon after dinner was served and the 'activity' turned out to be a big hit.

So what can we teach senior school girls, I asked her recently.

The Head of a girls school, located some 60 kms from our city, was keen to either get a part time art and craft teacher or ask her school teachers to be trained in the city this summer. And I had turned to Jayashree.

She had a small list to suggest. And she also told me how recent paints allow people who are creative and good in the basics of art to create designs on dupattas, on the sari pallu or on sling bags. And how these products can generate a decent income from part time or weekend work. This idea made an impression and we are trying to work out some workshops for the school girls in the new academic year.

Local schools are just the places for people who are creative to offer time and talent.

Till recently, even the schools run by the city's civic body, Chennai Corporation, allowed craftspeople and artists to handle some extra-curricular classes like painting, screen printing, fancy jewellery making and the like. This practice was suspended following a controversial act by a guest in a city school.

Around us are small, private schools where children from economically-weak families study. They can benefit from workshops which have the potential for the teens to master a simple craft and turn it into an economic activity. You and your neighbours may want to curate an event this summer!

Or, you could even host a simple workshop in your residential campus which may have a community hall used for social events of residents. Invite teens from the area where you reside and get them involved in making colourful cloth bags or fancy earrings.

Teach them a skill and show them how it can also make a career, a business, a life.

Amma Unavagam on Prof Sanjeevi Street 'in the dark'

The Amma Unavagam on Prof Sanjeevi Street, Mylapore has had no power supply for the past few months. There is no access to water and staff members here say that they are forced to fetch water from outside and that customers have to eat in the dark. The women staff members have no access to toilets as well. The authorities have been informed and no action has been taken, say the staff members. Can the authorities address these issues as soon as possible?

Panguni festival: Self-restraint by people needed

Team Urbaser Sumeet, responsible for waste collection and segregation in the city, has done their job well. At the same time, the public should be mindful while lighting camphor or breaking coconuts on mada vedhis. Prasadam distribution must also be done at designated places only. Public must exercise self-restraint during temple festivals.

Appreciation for Ramakrishna Mission Students Home youth

I was glad to see a letter in the last edition of Mylapore Times, appreciating the work performed by Urbaser Sumeet staff in clearing the mess on Mada Streets during the Panguni festival.

It was a thoroughly deserving one.

At the same time, I wish to appreciate a group of youngsters sporting 'Ramakrishna Mission Students Home' T-shirts who were also clearing the mess on the streets.

Then there were callers from Royapettah High Road, P. S. Sivaswamy Salai, Kutchery Road, Mandaveli, Alwarpet and San Thome. A

Koozh and buttermilk. Sold at this Mandavelipakkam spot

By Akshita K.

While most of Mylapore is still asleep, the aroma of wood-fired cooking wafts down Nattu Muthu Kumarappan Street. These days, at 3 a.m., Raju is already hard at work - he is preparing koozh and buttermilk which sells fast at summertime. Tucked between a row of shops opposite the Aavin booth on West Circular Road, Mandavelipakkam, Sri Foods Saiva Unavagam is Raju's food joint.

By 6 a.m., the stall is ready to serve koozh, palaya sadam (cooked rice soaked/fermented in water overnight) and seasoned and buttermilk. The koozh is a gruel made from millet and the spiced buttermilk is much in demand here.

Raju says the food is sold out by 11 a.m.

The joint also offers rice dishes like avarakkai rice, keerai rice and vazhathandu rice, alongside staple favorites like lemon rice, tomato rice and vegetable biryani. The rice packs are priced between Rs 30 and Rs 40.

Says Raju, "This is the kind of food we offer. Simple, seasonal, and sacred," says Raju. "I wanted to cook and offer food which we have forgotten. Our food isn't fancy, but it is healthy."

HOLY WEEK AT LOCAL CHURCHES

By Our Edit Team

A significant feature of the Holy Week services at Catholic churches in Mylapore zone was witnessed on what is called Maundy Thursday.

Holy Week begins with Palm Sunday and ends with Easter; a week when Christians recall and reflect on events that led to the condemnation, death on the cross and resurrection of Jesus.

The 'washing of the feet' ceremony on Maundy Thursday is a symbolic one - one of humility, which recalls Jesus washing the feet of his apostles before they say for a final meal.

At the Maundy Thursday service held at the San Thome Cathedral-Basilica on April 17 evening, archbishop Dr. George Antonysamy of the Madras-Mylapore diocese washed the feet of a group representing the marginalized.

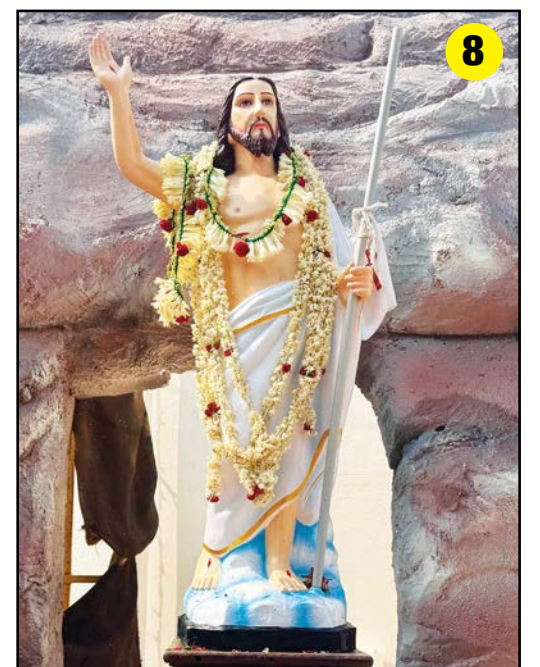

Breaking from the traditional practice of washing the feet of twelve men, the archbishop washed the feet of twelve individuals: three persons with mental challenges, two with physical challenges, one visually challenged individual, two women, two men, a 12-year-old child who lost his mother earlier this year, and a member of the third gender.

The cue was taken by the communities in other churches. At Our Lady of Light Church in Luz, nuns were among the women whose feet were symbolically washed by the priest here.

At Our Lady of Visitation Church of Abiramapuram zone, a few handicapped people were invited to join others at the 'washing of the feet' ceremony.
