Sri Venkatesan Theertham: facilities for rituals after death

There are certain rituals to be performed for 12 days immediately after a person passes away. This 12-day ritual that includes homam and dhaanam is referred to as Apara Karyam.

This process is to provide peace to the departed soul and to lead him/her to join the forefathers in the heavenly abode and also for the departed soul to bless the family members.

On the 12th day, sapan-di karanam is performed where one priest performs the karya and a few other priests take dhanam. After the 12-day mourning, Shubha Sweekaaram denoting the return to normalcy is performed at home on the 13th day.

Sri Venkatesa Theertham located on Venkatesa Agraharam, Mylapore was launched over a year ago and offers these 'Karma Karyam' facilities to perform the 12-day ritual.

The facility has been running full during this period.

There are six independent dwelling units within the facility and a well to access the sacred water.

The facility is well staffed with two managers, a watchman and three cleaners. There are no holidays observed here and this place in Mylapore is open throughout the year.

A kitchen garden at a Chennai School

By Our Staff Reporter

On the occasion of World Earth Day, Sundaram Finance initiated an event at the Chennai School (managed by GCC) on Veera Perumal Street in Mylapore.

This was 'an education session on the importance of caring for the earth and protecting the environment'. 50 students were guided through the process of setting up a 'kitchen garden' at this event held last weekend. The children planted a number of vegetable and fruit saplings inside the school campus. In course of time, the produce from these is expected to be utilised at the school's noon meal centre.

Illustrating the example of how small saplings in the years gone by had now grown into big trees inside the school providing shade to the students, the organisers encouraged the students to plant as many saplings as possible. They were also asked to take this simple concept of kitchen garden back to their homes.

There was also a demo to the students on the theme 'Save the Soil – Composting' by a few students of IIT Madras.

Last month, Sundaram Finance had organised a plant sapling initiative at Nageswara Rao Park in Luz on the occasion of World Forestry Day.

VINCENT'S JOTTINGS

By VINCENT D' SOUZA

I am rewinding to a school-time summer holidays season. Doing so because that memory is distinct.

We were fooling around at home and around when my Dad asked if I would want to do some light work at his office and pick up some money for the effort. I volunteered. It must have been a blank response - I may not have really thought over the suggestion.

I was placed in the godown. My dad worked for a pharma company. The job was simple - slapping some stickers on packaged products. For company, I had another schoolboy, the son of Dad's colleague. And we were joined by the company's regular contract workers.

I didn't ask Dad why he had put me in that godown for 5 days. Was he trying to get me to earn and put away that money for my pocket expenses? Or was this his idea of providing me a change of scene?

But I came back with some experience. Of work ethic. Of relating to full-time workers. Rewards for that summer holiday which may not have meant big then.

Years later, work ethic lessons came to play in my career. I was an independent freelance journalist and the Madras edition of the Indian Express hired me to handle the weekly Entertainment Page. I had been writing on cinema and cultural events in the city and this record earned me that call from the Express. My final job on a Thursday night was to hop across to the design section and work alongside the designers to set the page.

I quickly realised that I could not plunge into the work at hand and get away. The Express staff in that room first wanted to take a look at all the photos, discuss the films and the gossip that went around the film-stars: work began only after that banter. That summer, I learnt new lessons - how does one work with teams outside the Editorial in a publication.

Those are lessons that have deeply impacted me and guided me on my long journey as editor and publisher.

Summer camps are now the fad - drawing children to neighbourhood spaces to learn new skills or just go cool on an activity that fascinates them. Art, craft, dance and music, sport, creative writing, theatre . . .

And I wonder - would it profit teenagers to have a work experience during their summer holidays?

Let us start with an experience in the community, in our neighbourhood.

Destination One - a park like Nageswara Rao Park in Luz. A group of teens working here, from say 7 to 9 am over five days. Working alongside the park staff. Tending to the plants and trees, freshening the soil, documenting the green and the colours, composting. Linking up with like-minded walkers and visitors at this park. Would this not be a great work experience? All we need is a community body to curate this project and draw a dozen teens to it. Why, it needs two or three residents who love gardening and the greens to initiate and guide a camp of this kind.

Destination Two - the local Health Centre run by Chennai Corporation. Collaborating with the staff here and working alongside the health workers inside and in the field. Imagine the varied experience a young person can have here.

Getting your hands dirty, rubbing shoulders with people you may have never interacted this far is best done during a break in life. Doing it when we are young impacts. Profits us in ways we may not appreciate now but earns dividends later.

Woes of senior citizens at ration shops

The re-introduction of the biometric system in TN Civil Supplies ration shops is detrimental to the cause of senior citizens. They often fail to get their legitimate quota of provisions. This is due to the failure of biometric system authentication.

The fingerprints of senior citizens will definitely show wide variation due to their ageing. This fact has to be accepted. Too much dependence on the biometric system will not help the cause of the consumers. Instead, the smart card can be scrutinised and if the ration shop staff is satisfied with its genuineness, the rations may be given.

The TN Civil Supplies Dept. has not been proactive on this issue. Senior citizens would appreciate that their issues be well understood.

Messy traffic scenes on Kalvivaru Street

Schools in Mylapore got back to their daily, hectic campus life recently and with this, the perennial problem of traffic jams in and around the schools came back to haunt us and is now creating nightmares to motorists.

Take the scene on and off Kalvivaru Street, at the rear of Vidya Mandir school - it takes at least 30 minutes to drive from one end of this street to the other during the school opening and closing time. There is no one to regulate the traffic except for some good Samaritans like local auto drivers.

The problem is compounded by the indiscriminate parking of vehicles on both sides of the road, reducing the 40ft road to a mere 20ft one.

I request Traffic Police and the school authorities to address this issue. Some suggestions - make the road strictly one-way; make one side of the road 'No Parking' area and take penal action against violators; stagger the school timings between Primary, Secondary & Senior sections, allowing a one-hour gap, to reduce vehicular movement.

MY STORY

A Collection of old Tamil film songs

By SRIDHAR VENKATARAMAN

Listening to music helps activate the part of the brain associated with memory retention and when the music is from collections composed decades ago, it provides happy memories, sometimes even to those who suffer from loss of memory due to abnormalities like dementia. For those who have a passion for listening to old songs from the past century, great discoveries of some songs can jog memories, keep the mind happy and relaxed.

With such a context, I embarked on an exercise starting in February 2020, before the onset of COVID, to build a collection of almost every Tamizh film song from the last century that was played on FM radio channels. In addition to storing a copy of the song, for private use, it was tagged with its movie, singers, music director, the lyricist and the year (of release) to enable easy retrieval for various purposes. As I was building my collection, I also thought it fit to provide recognition to each of the film artistes involved by publishing an article on Facebook about their work on their birth anniversary or their day of remembrance. I am sure that there are multiple other ways that this recognition happens but I have been able to provide lots of happy memories and even some surprises to the audience on my news-feed using the various details in the posts.

While the content I have cannot be shared, because of copyright regulations, the tagging information is something that can be shared with anyone interested. I am aware of people who publish articles about their favourite artistes or people who conduct music quizzes and the information that has been aggregated can add value to their exercise. I can be contacted at sridharve@gmail.com or at 9790957208.

I have also taken the next step to construct playlists, using my aggregated information, from publicly available content on platforms like Spotify, which I have published as well. We have all benefited from content that has been made available in many forms by Good Samaritans for good purposes and it is our turn to give something back to society and I hope that people who see value in my aggregated information reflect that spirit.

I am truly grateful to one of my friends who encouraged me to start on this initiative, to the multiple FM radio channels which seeded this exercise and to the contributors on Wikipedia and Youtube who were the major sources of data.

Leith Castle area community meets councillor: highlights problems

By Our Staff Reporter

Leith Castle Residents' Association (LECRA) recently conducted its first offline meeting for its members after a gap of two years – regular meet-ups were put on hold due to COVID. This colony of three / four streets is located off San Thome High Road's south end.

Ward 126 councillor Amirda Varshini of the Congress (I) party was invited to the meeting and she interacted with members.

Local civic issues such as frequent power cuts, stray dog menace, sewer blockages, illegal vendors and unregulated parking, were discussed during the meet-up.

Residents also highlighted drug peddling and other anti-social issues that take place in the adjoining open space in Foreshore Estate which belongs to the TNHB.

One resident said that councillor Amirda Varshini has noted the key grievances and agreed to resolve issues based on priority, working along with association members.

Venkat Raghavan, a member and volunteer of the association, says "Frequent power outages and voltage fluctuations is the main issue in our area. Repeated complaints and escalations to TANGEDCO authorities have not yielded any positive responses. Most of the power equipment and cables are old in our streets and need a major overhaul. It's a great inconvenience to our residents especially with the summer in full swing."

The association's team also took this opportunity to hand over groceries kits to conservancy staff responsible for keeping Leith Castle streets clean.

The LECRA team says it plans to take up more initiatives around source segregation and in disciplining street parking.

Does your colony need rainwater recharge wells to tap flood water?

By Our Staff Reporter

Akash Ganga Trust/ Rain Centre which is based in Adyar, in the last two decades, has been deeply involved in popularising, promoting and propagating rainwater harvesting (RWH) particularly in urban areas.

Now, it plans to undertake small works in areas like Mylapore zone to sink recharge wells along streets / street corners in colonies where floodwater stagnation is severe, more during monsoons.

Sekhar Raghavan who heads the Rain Centre says Akash Ganga Trust has recently obtained a grant from a corporate and Rotary Clubs under District 3232 to dig recharge wells (RCW) in public spaces such as on the sides of roads, parks, playgrounds etc.

Sekhar says these recharge wells play a dual role of flood mitigation and recharging the groundwater table.

The recharge wells will be 3 feet in diameter and 15 feet deep, and provided with 3 inches thick RCC perforated lid. The cost of each recharge well is Rs. 23,000 (all inclusive).

Sekhar is looking out for individual residents and Residents' Welfare Associations in the Mylapore zone interested in mitigating water stagnation, harvesting runoff water on their streets, and improving groundwater table in their localities.

Flooded road: 2021 monsoon

What you need to do: Get in touch with Rain Centre. The first ten callers will get the RCW free of cost and the next ten callers with a 50% subsidy. Residents should suggest the location in public spaces only, which are prone to flooding/waterlogging.

Residents are also requested to inform the Assistant Engineer, GCC of the local ward and get his approval and through him ensure that the location is free of power cables, Metrowater and sewer lines. It will be useful if the resident can find out the groundwater level around the proposed location.

Buy our pani pooris please!

How can you be an entrepreneur? Lessons and ideas were shared at a recent project held at Children's Garden School. A project hosted by Madras Management Association, offering a set of short courses on campus for senior students

By Our Staff Reporter

This group of Std.9 students were given a few one-hundred rupee notes. They were told - buy stuff that you can sell at the school sale and if you make a profit you can keep the profit.

The girls got excited. But they gave it some thought; they went back to some tips they had learnt in the classroom.

They decided snacks sold well. So they bought packs of pooris for their pani poori stall, prepared the yummy liquid and got into business on sale day. They sold all of it.

This happened at the 'Bazaar' meet organised at Children's Garden School, Mylapore recently.

The pani poori was one of dozen stalls set up on campus. The other student groups sold snacks, handmade home and readymade lifestyle accessories and simple craftwork. Shopping at the stalls were other students and some guests and parents and friends of the students who were taking part in this unique sale.

'Bazaar' was the outcome of a short course held at this school. On entrepreneurship.

Resource person Padmaja had taught the 30-plus girl students of Std.9 on this subject, giving them simple lessons on how they could put their skills to set up a micro business even from home or around and earn money whenever they were ready to stand on their own feet.

'Bazaar' was part of a programme that Madras Management Association (MMA) has been holding in schools.

Explains R. Venkataraman, general manager of MMA, "These programmes are short and worked into the regular time-table of a host school and the students get introduced to new skills."

At Children's Garden School, which is located in a street that runs off Dr. Radhakrishnan Salai, MMA held many courses - creative art, Brain Gym, robotics and spoken English, besides entrepreneurship basics.

"Our students have benefitted," says school headmistress R. M. Karpagambal. "These courses were a diversion from the daily classroom lessons and our students enjoyed the sessions and learnt some new skills."

This package was made possible by MMA through the support provided by ACSYS Investments through the latter's CSR (corporate social responsibility) service.

MMA assigns resource people to handle each course, which it held for, say two hours a week over 15 days in a campus.

Says MMA's R. Venkataraman, "We keep the courses simple. Even the practicals are designed such that students can get them done in the classroom."

So, as part of the entrepreneurship course, the girls got to learn how to make snacks like sandwiches, cookies and sweetmeats using simple accessories to make them.

"We want to introduce students to subjects that can influence their studies outside school and give them some leads," says MMA's Venkataraman. So the basics on robotics were explained to students in Std.11/12 who are in the 'first' group, with math / computers as main subjects.

The MMA-devised programme has been previously held in a few other schools in Mylapore, schools where students rarely have an exposure to such projects or skills.
