VINCENT's JOTTINGS

By VINCENT D' SOUZA

The Madras Day genie stays in me, is all over me and cannot be bottled easily. And I like its spiritedness too - for it has brought many, many people into its fold. I find this collaborative effort this August fulfilling.

Friends Jothi and Manavalan, whose homes once used to be off the Royapuram and Kasimedu shores had hinted of the stories of their lives and those of 40 plus villages which were sunk due to two expansions - of the Madras Port and then, Kasimedu Fishing Harbour.

So we dropped our idea of exploring some nice food joints in that area and curated a Tour for Madras Day season. It got over last Sunday.

What an education it was for the 17 people who were with us, with Durga, missing our van and driving mad an auto, all the way from Bessie Beach to the N4 bus stop. So much to learn and unlearn of what was truly The Madras before it began to expand south of the Fort and into the Plain.

Madras Day events are not mere events. They lead on to greater things. Jothi and Manavalan are also famed artists and they have now decided they will visualise and bring alive the sunken villages so that there is some documentation for posterity. Activist Nityanand Jayaraman who works closely in coastal zones and has run many a campaign in Ennore and Pulicat, will help get them some maps that show the pre-1970s seaside habitation.

It is the collaborative spirit that has also boosted one of my annual Fort St George Walks; there will be one this weekend (the Walk open to all is on Aug.21). On Saturday, I have invited four  $\,$ colleges to send 15/20 students to join me on the 7.15 a.m Walk which lasts two hours. Stella Maris' History department is keen; so is WCC's. And the girls from Sri Kanyaka Parameswari Arts and Science College for Women in George Town are keeping their date too. The security at the Fort are going to be stunned when they see this huge group! But they will be warm because by now, many, many people, are aware of Chennai Dinam / Madras Day. Even the IAS officers gladly issue OK letters for our Walks; I recall that year when two young IAS officers tagged along. And I am sure, if chief minister M. K. Stalin is working overtime at his office, he may step out and wish these students.

The Mylapore Club is also a collaborator. I appreciate its team offering us their space to hold a Sports Quiz that veteran sports journalist and editor of many books, Partab Ramchand is hosting this Sunday evening. I hope the Club members, especially the young ones who learn cricket and table tennis take part in this Quiz.

The collaborative spirit got infectious when I asked for support for two quizzes - the Sports Quiz and the Madras Quiz for Tamil medium schools that another collaborator and Madras Day catalyst R. Revathi will host at Ranade Library, yet another collaborator. Five people have come forward with donations and coupons. This is the real spirit of the Madras Day. People together in small, local ways for the city. When we ended my Night Life on Mount Road Walk (where someone asked me what The Hindu newspaper had to do with night life and its former, veteran photographer D. Krishnan later quipped; What night life? We had a smoke and tea at Buhari's after the edition closed at night) we swamped Buhari's Cafe and Bakery to sample their famed bun-butter-jam. The owner, surprised by the chatter, then offered the Buharis version of the Goan dholdhol, which has Portuguese roots.

Soak in. Two more weeks. www.themadrasday.in

Tributes to Saroja Miss

As a Rosary alumna (1996 batch) I remember Saroja Miss with respect and fondness. She was a force to reckon with when it came up putting up those productions for all celebrations at school. I'm glad I got a chance to sing for many of those.

It is only in my adult years that I realise how remarkable her presence and contributions were in a convent school. A true ode to the wonderful myriad of cultures and traditions that blended together in Rosary school. Proud to have been her student there.

- Pavitha Charan S.

• I used to recall how we used to remove our shoes outside dance class. She insisted we wear pyjama for class. She was the only teacher who conversed in Tamil.

We used to stand in l_l shape, housewise, turn and perform our dance exam.... I remember her classes. That shows how good she was and could make us remember the mudras we learnt.

- Harsita Sinha

Photo: G. Narendra • The little dance I know was learnt from her.

- Malini Rajeev

• She tried very hard to teach us Bharatanatyam for five years in school. We are grateful and remember her with fondness.

- Manjula Anandamurthy

 Saroja Miss, our memories are fresh in our minds. You took all the pain to compose two songs about Jesus and Mary and you made my daughter Madonna to perform them on the stage, on her arangaettram day. The way you were secular, tolerant and the way you showed respect to other religious people, really awesome.

- Josephine Panneer

Such a vibrant, pretty, graceful dancer! Still have her Dhushyanthan/Thamayanthi dance with Sheela Pathi, performed on the little stage of Rosary Matric School, in the late 1960s etched in my mind.

- Geetha Shekar

She was a dedicated teacher! Heartfelt condolences to Mahalakshmi

- Sripriya Venkataraman

Classic example of integration

This refers to the Obit advertisement by Rosary Matric School. A Christian institution celebrating a Muslim tailor and a Hindu teacher is a classic example of integration. On one occasion, Erose Tailor took an order for 150 costumes for a peacock dance and delivered them all in three days. Saroja Miss and her daughter trained the children in three days. My sister, Meenakshi Subramanian, ex-RMS teacher, shared this anecdote.

Bad quality of Metro water in C. V. Raman Road

Metro Water officials, please note. Post the SWDs work which was carried out in C V Raman Road, the quality of water that we get is very poor. The water is very muddy and unfit for use for washing and other purposes. Can officers at the Dr Ranga Road office help?

- Padmasini

Remembering 'The Mail' A. S. Kumaraswami

This is with reference to Vincent's Jottings in Mylapore Times dated August 7-12, 2022. Of particular interest to me was the information that A. S. Kumaraswami, senior editor of The Mail, taught you the basics of journalism. He was one of the doyens of journalism in those days. I was associated with him not only as a distant relative but as a co-resident in R. A. Puram, Chennai for more than three decades.

MY STORY

Celebrating Saroja Miss. A Tribute.

By G. NARENDRA

Feels like the air has been sucked out from our lungs. The affection, the unconditional love, the prayers, the blessings, the laughter, the naughtiness, the food that satiates every soul is all only a memory. The way Saroja Kameswaran delicately touched lives is beyond comprehension. Not many know how beautifully she graced lives.

Bhakthi! Never once did she miss going to a temple. Kapali, Kamakshi, Vinayaka and many more of the supreme forces were engulfed in her veil of bhakti. She also found peace going to a chapel. Not a day went by without her visiting her favourite gods! She never let go of her Rosary

School till her last breath, such was her devotion - pristine, pure and perfect. She worked in Rosary for over 50 : vears. didn't let go of her Rosary yet again!

Life was not a bed of roses but she rode along with a smile. She worked not just to earn her bread but to fill many other hungry stomachs and yearning hearts. She cooked and generously shared her meals everyday. Getting a ball of dal and rice loaded with love and warmth from her plate was something many of us

She taught little children not just Natyam but comforted them, played with them, lent them an ear and inculcated values. They adored their 'Big Miss'. If either Deepa or I was unwell she would be the first person to bring rasam and idlis. The streak of vibhuthi she would put on our foreheads would cure just about anything.

She adored my Natyam and was a true fan! I would say 'Kakkaikku than kunju ponn kunju'

She was my Yashoda, was more than my own mother. I feel truly orphaned to say the least.

Today, as we pen this together our eye up, hearts are shattered and tears have no meaning anymore. One thing is certain - we are truly blessed to have been an integral part of her life, privy to the beautiful delicate, sensitive person she was. Will hold on tight to all the beautiful moments and try to relive it....a part of us is gone with her. But she will remain in the hearts of many forever

She ended her journey with poise. Surrendered herself on Ekadashi, in her pooja room, as she laid her forehead in front of her beloved Ambal grasping her japamala. Indeed, a life to be celebrated!

Kalidas Venkatraman, a senior in the print and advertising field who headed The Hindu newspaper's operations from Chennai, passed away on August 15 in the USA, where he was spending time with his children. He was 80.

He lived in R. A. Puram, his home for many many years.

A note shared by his children on a social media page says much of the man - Dad started working in The Hindu at the age of 18 in Calcutta, having to support his family after the passing of his father V. V. Sastry. He rose to the highest ranks in the Advertising Department through his innate capabilities, knowing how to treat people, and absolutely incredible work ethic. His sheer joy and enthusiasm to go to work every Monday morning is something we will never forget!

He was not only an advertising guy. His writing, public speaking abilities and way with words is something I cannot even start to emulate. He had numerous articles published in The Hindu and sister publications on such a diverse range of topics, and was invited to speak in many colleges.

That talent came from his love for reading and deep knowledge of English literature. He would rattle out phrases from Shakespeare and would force us to read Wren and Martin when we could barely spell it!

Former managing director of The Hindu and now, director of The Hindu Publishing Group N. Murali, who joined the family business of The Hindu in 1969, just a couple of years prior to Kalidas' entry, has known him closely for over five decades

He said that Kalidas' father and his cousins too had served at The Hindu for many years and hence his family's association had been there with the newspaper for long.

He had joined The Hindu as an advertising executive in Bombay in the early 1970s and then moved to Calcutta as the Head of Advertising there. He then returned to Bombay for a second stint, this time as the Ad Head. "Kali had his ear to the ground. He built terrific contacts with the ad agencies across the country. He kept up the image of The Hindu and did a lot for our business."

He spent the last two decades of his service at The Hindu's Chennai headquarters and retired as Senior VP - Advertising. "He was a well-rounded person, energetic, smart, intelligent and dynamic."

Murali said that Kali's interests spanned beyond advertising. "He was interested in music, arts, travel and sports and wrote columns for The Hindu.'

The man behind AIR's news bulletin on August 15, 1947 is amongst us. In Mandaveli

By Kanaka Cadambi

"Akashwani. Seidigal vaasippadu, Venkatraman.'

This was the voice that conveyed in Tamil the momentous news of India attaining independence, from New Delhi, early on August 15, 1947. For Radio Ceylon's 5.45 am news bulletin for South Asian countries, broadcast by All India Radio, better known as Akashvani.

The newsreader, R. S. Venkatraman, now a 99-year-old, is a resident of Robertson Lane in Mandaveli. He was one of the four popular voices that ruled the All India Radio Tamil news world for decades, alongside Saroj Narayanaswami, Poornam Viswanathan and Recalling the intense feelings when announcing the news in August 1947, Venkatraman said, "It cannot be captured in words."

Venkatraman was with AIR for 64 years: 50 plus years as a regular artiste and 12 years as a casual artist. Not surprisingly, in 1997, AIR accorded him a great privilege. He was invited to read the news on the golden jubilee anniversary of India's independence.

"Never did I think I would become a news reader. I went to Delhi to take up a government job. Those days, radio was a powerful medium for news and entertainment. My friend Krishnaswami from AIR organised a reading of my story, Aasai, on the radio. When I went to AIR in this connection, I was told that there was a vacancy for a script writer. I just took it up. I went on to head the Tamil news section in AIR,' he recalled.

INDEPENDENCE DAY

National flag hoisted in some residences and shops, communities hold local events

The focus across some zones of Mylapore may have been on people's effort to respect the campaign by prime minister Narendra Modi to hoist and fly the national flag for three days ending August 15 to mark 75 years of India's independence. There were flags fluttering at the base of the gopurams of Sri Kapali Temple.

In many areas, small, community-driven Independence Day events were held.

Among these were members of the CIT Colony community who curated a string of events in the park and the Rangavalli group of women designed a unique Rangoli here. Vasanth Kumar shared details as did Gayathri Sankarnarayan.

The Muslim community, off Mosque Street near Chitrakulam, Mylapore, hoisted the national flag and shared sweetmeats with people all around. Community activist C R Balaji shared this news.

Out on the Marina seaface, in the Nochikuppam colony, following a move by an NGO called Roots, the national flag was unfurled, the local kuppam headman claiming that such an event had never taken place in recent memory. The local councillor, Revathy, was present. This news was shared by advocate Auxilia Peter, a participant.

At the Manasava Apartments on Thiruvengadam Street, Mandaveli families closed in for a snappy event, got it video-recorded and shared on social media. Giridhar Kesavan shared the news from here. RAPRA, the umbrella body that represents most parts of R. A. Puram held its annual show, said its founder Dr Chandrasekaran.

Every year for Independence Day and Republic Day, the Jeth Nagar community gives the honour and platform to senior and decorated citizens to hoist the flag. On Monday morning, Sukumaran who retired from IOL and led the sales and marketing for Nagarjuna Oil Corporation did the honours. Urbaser Sumeet staff who clean the area's streets were honoured. This news came from Ravi Nandyala, who heads JERA, the community body.

Meera Rao said that at the Nadu Street space, civic workers were honoured.

The Nursing College at St Isabel's Hospital campus off Musiri Subramaniam Road always holds colourful events for national days, as they did on Monday morning; a formal parade and flag hoisting and snappy culturals.

There was buzz in all local schools, with costume shows of kids dressed as freedom time heroes and heroines; as at Lady Sivaswamy Ayyar Girls School and at Fatima Primary School, managed by Our Lady of Guidance Church, R A Puram.

Independence Day was celebrated by the residents of Abbotsbury Apartments. A senior, Sivaramakrishnan hoisted the flag and this was followed by a cultural programme of patriotic songs by children, women and men, Sowmya Shankar reported.

At Sri Sumukhi Rajasekharan Foundation in R. A. Puram, the Mylapore Trio got the children in the apartment to unveil a unique statue of Mahatma Gandhi. The Trio (Surendranath, Amarnath and Aparna) recollected the sacrifices made by their foster father, Rajasekaran who was a freedom fighter and an ardent follower of C. Rajagopalachari.

The Mandaveli Raja Street RWA hosted the Independence Day event as a large local community show. Residents of Raja Street, Kandaswamy Street, Raja Street Extension, Velayutharaja Street joined in. After the flag hoisting ceremony, patriotic songs were sung in chorus by all. Patriotic Challenge Games were organised. The event ended with the tricolour parade where residents marched up and down the street waving tricolour balloons and calling out slogans. News shared by Ganga Sridhar.

A simple flag hoisting event was held at Thiruvengadam Street, Mandaveli. A small group participated, said Baskar Seshadri, a resident.

At Ganesh Apartments, D'Silva Road, the flag was hoisted by two senior residents - V. S. Krishnan and Rajalakshmi Dorairajan. The Association honoured all residents who had crossed 75 years of age, said Sampath D.

The community at Sai Dharma Apartments, on C. V Raman Road, Alwarpet, celebrated Independence Day with seniors and juni holding up the tricolour on the terrace and singing Vande Mataram, reported Ramanathan Shankaran.

Residents of Shriram Madhuram Flats, 3rd Trust Cross Street, Mandavelipakkam hoisted the national flag in their complex, said K. S. Ganesan, association secretary.

Sir Sivaswami Kalalaya Matriculation Hr. Secondary School celebrated the day with the inauguration of an exhibition of charts on 75 freedom fighters made by senior students. It has been the school's practice for the Student Pupil Leader to hoist the India flag every year. This time, the honour went to Fuzayl Ameen

This Paal payasam prasadam is special

By S. Prabhu

While puliyotharai and chakkarai pongal are the standard prasadam that one receives in local temples, this one at Sri Madhava Perumal Temple is different as an every day presentation to goddess.

Every evening, at around 6 pm, paal payasam is presented to Amruthavalli Thayar at this temple. Following this, the sacred prasadam is distributed to the devotees who eagerly look forward to this

One devotee who wishes to remain anonymous has been organising this for the last many years. apart from this special recipe, the traditional food at this temple every day through the year during morning and afternoon pooja includes dhadhyonam (curd rice), puliyotharai and chakkarai pongal.
