This R. A. Puram community is hosting weekend meet-ups for seniors. Local park is venue

By Baskar Seshadri

A small but genuine effort has been made in R. A. Puram to encourage senior citizens to spend some time together.

The R. K. Nagara community has started a weekly meet-up for seniors at the community park that was created from OSR land in R. K. Nagar, near the L&T Ragamalika apartments.

Last Saturday, a dozen men and women who reside in this area got together at the park to exchange pleasantries and male small talk.

Artist Sivakumar, who runs Karam Korpom, a Trust which has done commendable work in projects that seek to protect and enliven urban environment, was also present at the park.

He set up a small speaker, whipped out his flute and played some old film tunes.

K. L. Balasubramanian of the R K Nagara body says that this project is a soft effort to get seniors together.

Saturday meetings will start around 7.30 a.m. Residents of nearby areas are welcome to attend.

People who wish to present light standup comedy, or sing or narrate stories at these meets are welcome to drop by. Everything is voluntary here.

VINCENT'S JOTTINGS

By VINCENT D' SOUZA

Kabaddi is a very popular sport. And if you travel across Tamil Nadu, on weekends, you may come across a tournament in progress inside a school or college campus or in the local playground.

These private tournaments are fairly big affairs. The top prize winner can earn as much as Rs.50,000. Plus, there are rolling cups or shields. Teams from across the state participate and the meets are generally dawn-to-dusk affairs, which saves the host the aches of providing for and spending on accommodation for over 50/75 players.

Local stores and regional brands are roped in as sponsors and local cable TV operators signed up to provide live, online coverage of key matches. Even the regional editions of Tamil newspapers report on these tournaments and I am told that a few players have made it to the state-level from these ranks.

I have got a better understanding of this sport and its life in the state and outside from the time a sports coach sought some support for the girls kabaddi players he was coaching in a fishing village off the East Coast Road.

How he managed to convince a dozen teenagers to sign up for his coaching in a zone that is orthodox and sensitive is another story. My guess is that when the parents of these school-going girls were shown video clips of girls and women taking part in kabaddi matches closer home and in the national league, they relented.

The elders began to recognise the value of the sport when this team won some metal and cash prizes in a few small tournaments and two of the players got admission to colleges in the city, based on their kabaddi-playing record.

Last weekend, there was a small celebration in the kuppam where these girls practice almost every evening, when the team returned from the Erode region with a handsome cup, awarded to them for winning the tournament. They celebrated because their record in this tournament was an impressive one, the like they have not made in recent times.

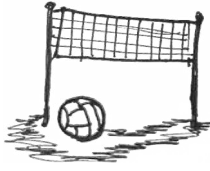

There are times when I take a break on the Marina Loop Road in our city for some fresh air, when I wonder why sports-minded people of this neighbourhood have not made serious efforts to promote beach volleyball in these ideal conditions.

I have bounced this idea on people who are involved in football coaching in this part of the city, with some of them undertaking coaching school students in shabby grounds close to the Marina side.

I suspect that they just do not have the resources nor the juices to promote beach volleyball.

People like the local area MLA and local area councillors surely can take the lead in playing key roles in promoting sports at the neighbourhood level; they must go beyond gracing prize-giving ceremonies. Or arranging for basic support but ensuring that the images of themselves and their leaders are prominently displayed all around the playground.

The Marina is such a wow place for beach volleyball games. Games which even beach-goers would enjoy watching on a weekend.

Warm memories of schooling at Rosary Matric

All that I am today, I owe it totally to my dear school, Rosary Matric in San thome, which is celebrating 75 years. The values, discipline, friendship and knowledge gained along with the best wishes and blessings received from all my teachers and friends, I hold closely. It fills me with pride to be an alumnus of this great institution.

Evergreen memories of happily eating lunch with friends under the cool shade of trees during lunch break and shooing away crows trying to snatch our lunch were little experiences that have stayed with me.

Sports during the PT period, participating in school events and rendering social service as a team; completing record work with great pains only to get a big hole punched in it after the exams, being educated by the best of teachers, especially in English by late Ramani Miss who was characteristic of her strict ways, at times with sarcasm and wit too, are among many other beautiful memories that always stay close to my heart.

Relevance of Mylapore Rewind

The Mylapore Rewind column makes delightful reading. Each extract from the past, which is not long ago, presents a fascinating look at Mylapore life. Of Aishwarya Rai visiting a Mylapore family which won in a contest to community plans for Nageswara Rao Park (which seems to be a seasonal affair!) to new facilities at Mylapore Post office which now look out of place in a fast-changing world. This record in Mylapore Times is surely a record of neighbourhood history.

'Old' Mandaveli

The publication in 'Mylapore Times' of a photo of Mandaveli Street - R. K. Mutt Road junction which must have been shot in the 1970s gave us a slice of life not so long ago. The nature of the state buses, the prevalence of animal-driven carts and the old local post office took us back to a time many of us have known. Keep publishing such old Mylapore photos.

East gopuram of Sri Kapali Temple is partly-lit

I have observed that in the past few weeks, only the top section of the east gopuram of Sri Kapali Temple in Mylapore is lit up at night. There used to be a time, when the entire gopuram was well-lit and stood out for a mile. Are the temple managers/ officers aware of the issue and taking steps to ensure that lighting is set right?

MYLAPORE REWIND

This column carries excerpts from Mylapore Times, 1995 onwards. This week, we focus on May, 1995

This 'kairasi' doc of San Thome is 87: still at his desk (May 13-19, 1995)

Chevalier Dr. Oswald George Constantine Vaz, Madras' longest practising medical doctor, celebrated his 87th birthday recently at his home in San Thome. It was also an occasion to celebrate the start of his 64th year of practice, which began at a rented place near the Royapettah clock tower. Considered a "kairasi" doctor by many, Dr. Vas has also treated Queen Sophia of Spain when she was on a royal visit.

Monkeys continue to worry residents of R. A. Puram (May 13-19, 1995)

A group of five monkeys continues to harass the residents of R A Puram. When Forest department officials visited the area and laid a trap, the simians gave the slip.

Lavanya, a resident, said that a monkey attacked her maid who tried to shoo it off.

She said she found them swinging on cable wires and breaking TV antennas in the area.

Dr. Oswald George C. Vaz

Indira Ramadurai passes away (May 13-19, 1995)

Honorary vice president of The Music Academy, of Vidya Mandir and of The Sanskrit College, Indira Ramadurai passed away at her residence, 'Seimaithram', located on First Cross Street, TTK Road. She was the former president of the Hindi Prachar Sabha and Bala Mandir, as well as an honorary magistrate at the Juvenile Court.

Andhra Bank's new loan for women - to buy bikes (May 6-12, 1995)

By R. Meera

At a function held at the Bharatiya Vidya Bhavan, Mylapore, Andhra Bank launched a unique two-wheeler loan scheme for women working in the private sector and government offices, as well as those earning more than Rs. 4,000 a month. The bank's chairman and managing director, G. Narayanan, said it would be a single-window service. Writer Sivasankari, a guest at the event, appreciated the bank's gesture.

Open overhead tanks to attract Rs. 50 penalty (May 6-12, 1995)

As part of an all-India campaign, the Madras Corporation's Zone X office in Mylapore has dedicated the week for an intensive anti-malaria drive. Assistant health officer of Zone X, Dr. Alphonse Selvaraj, said that under the TN Public Health Act, not covering overhead tanks was an offence and that the Corporation plans to slap a fine of Rs. 50 if offenders do not respond to notices.

Sruti award for Bombay natyacharya (May 6-12, 1995)

By S. Janaki

Leading natyacharya Mahalingam Pillai, who heads the Sri Rajarejeswari Natya Kala Mandir in Bombay, will receive the Sruti medal initiated by the Sruti Foundation located in Alwarpet. Pillai will receive the medal at the hands of Dr. Semmangudi Srinivasa Iyer, the doyen of Carnatic music, at a function to be held in The Music Academy's mini hall.

This unique show for special teens has been running for 15 years

By Our Edit Team

Imagine promoting a unique music show for 15 years, even through the pandemic years.

That show is called Tarang. It is promoted by V-Excel, a leading institution which has its headquarters in Mandaveli, which educates and skills less-abled people, is curated by Usha Suresh and has partnered with Bharatiya Vidya Bhavan, which provides the main auditorium.

Once a month, Usha puts together a set of artistes, mostly musicians and sometimes dancers and actors too, and lets them present a show that will bring joy, movement and some easy-go hours to girls and boys who are being skilled at V-Excel's centres in the Mylapore zone.

This week, Usha got up a special concert to mark the 15th year milestone. She got well-known artiste 'Ghatam' Karthick and his HeartBeat Ensemble to perform early one evening at Bhavan's hall.

Karthick and his team came up with a medley of semi-classical, folk, vintage cinema and some popular songs to entertain the audience - and as the music enveloped the place and the audience, the teens began to clap their hands to the beats, shake their bodies and sway their heads. Which is what V-Excel's founder Vasudha Prakash and the Tarang quartet Usha want to happen at all these shows.

The artistes got a big, loud round of applause when it all ended and a few children got up on the stage to felicitate the artistes.

Said Radha Bhaskar, senior Carnatic music

artiste and scholar who was at the show, "It was truly heartening to see these children clap in perfect rhythm to the beats of the percussionists. It made me emotional to see the power of music and how it can kindle even these special people to respond enthusiastically."

Said 'Ghatam'

Karthick, "This concert was truly a rewarding experience for all of us. We were here to entertain these special children and it was a joy to see so many smiling faces, enjoying the rhythms and melodies freely as we performed on stage."

Azhagiyasingar of Ahobila Mutt is camping in Mylapore

By Our Edit Team

The Azhagiyasingar of Ahobila Mutt has been camping in Mylapore since February 4 and will be here till February 17.

The Sri Vendanta Desikar Mantapam on Venkatesa Agraharam Street, Mylapore is where the swami is camping for almost a fortnight and conducting the daily rituals.

His visit is much anticipated in the city and if he chooses to camp here, he has the option of being based in Tambaram or in Mylapore. He chose the latter this season.

His tours are carefully planned ones; two buses and additional transport make the swami's caravan, with at least 100 people on the road on these tours.

All the idols and receptacles required for the daily rituals and pujas are transported in a bus and they get transferred to the camp venue.

On February 9, the dwadasi day, saw a large gathering of people at the mantapam, a day when the star birthday of the swami is celebrated.

On one evening, he visited Sri Vedantha Desikar Temple, not far from the camping venue; he was accorded a grand welcome in the temple zone.

Scheduled from February 11 to 13, were the jeeyar's monthly thirunakshatra parayanam. On February 16 & 17 is the pancharatra agama sadas.

The jeeyar is scheduled to leave Mylapore on February 18.

Police nab man who made off with cash, valuables at wedding hall

By Our Edit Team

Mylapore police have arrested a man who slipped into a wedding hall in Mylapore when a wedding was on and made off with cash, jewellery and some valuables.

The man hails from Villupuram, had been successful with a similar act at a wedding hall in Saidapet and had a few criminal cases to his name.

Cash to the value of over Rs.2 lakhs was seized from the accused by the police after the arrest was made.

Police acted on a complaint that Eswari lodged at the Mylapore police station a week ago.

The theft took place during the wedding of her eldest son.

She said that she had left cash and valuables in bags inside the hall located on East Mada Street, Mylapore and had joined others for a session of group photographs and when she returned to her seat, found the cash and valuables missing.

Police tapped into footage of CCTV cameras at the hall and in the zone, identified the accused and then tracked him down.

Obituary

T. P. Vivekanand, sports journalist, advertising professional and passionate sportsman passed away on February 9. He was a resident of R. A. Puram.

Vivekanand was a true-blue Madras-vasi. He grew up in Nandanam and lived in many parts of the city, before becoming a resident of R. A. Puram over the last three years. An advertising and media professional, he had many interests and passions that straddled the world of sport and literature.

Sport was in his blood. His father, T. D. Parthasarathy was the sports correspondent of 'The Hindu' newspaper, and later the editor of the hugely popular magazine of yesteryear, 'Sport & Pastime'.

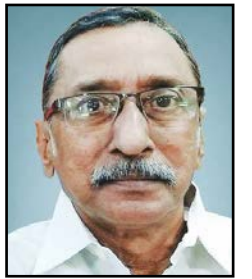

Vivek was an excellent cricketer – he opened the batting for Presidency College and bowled leg spin. He was a skilled swimmer, tennis player, golfer and a bridge aficionado. He was also a keen quizzist and crazy about crosswords.

He began his work-life as a sports reporter for 'The Mail', the now defunct but once popular evening newspaper of Madras.

He later moved to advertising, working for agencies like MAA, Adwave, Contract, Mudra, and Fifth Estate.

Vivek's sharp intellect, direct and articulate speech and deep knowledge about various subjects, and his sense of humour made him a valuable colleague and a much-loved friend, his family said.

The family's address : No.1, Muruga Krupa Apartments, 18/19, R. K. Nagar 1st Cross Street, R. A. Puram.

Docs to speak on health issues that bother seniors. At Billroth. Feb.16

By Our Edit Team

Three doctors will speak on medical and health issues that bother people, especially seniors, at a meeting to be held in a R A Puram hospital on February 16

This event is presented by Raja Annamalai Puram Residents' Association (RAPRA) in association with Billroth Hospital and it is on February 16, 11 am onwards at Billroth and is open to all.

Dr. Mallika Thiruvadan will speak on palliative care, Dr U. V. Ramakrishnan on respiratory problems in old age and Dr. Amalorpavanathan will speak on organ donation and how one can go about it.

There is to be a session on organ donation conducted by a representative from the Transplant Authority of Tamil Nadu. This has been arranged because many people are curious about organ donation but are not fully aware of the process, said a member of RAPRA.

Attendees will be screened for BP, sugar and BMI – all done free of charge.

Prior registration is a must to attend this programme. Only 40 persons will be registered free.

Those interested can register their names with Dr R Chandrasekaran on 98410 30040.

Bottle art showcased at fun event at Mylapore mall

By Our Edit Team

If you are at Citi Centre mall in Mylapore this weekend, you may want to spend some time at a show on the ground floor of this shopping mall which seems to be getting its zing back in recent times.

BadAsss Bottlez, a Mylapore-based venture of Venkat Subramanian, is presenting a melange of attractions. On one side will be a variety of bottles that have been recycled with creative art and ideas which are also up for sale, on another are fun and games and contests, on another you can get to appreciate the versatility of glass and one another, desks to interact with less-abled but highly creative people. BadAsss Bottlez has located many bottle artists online who upcycle glass bottles into innovative works of art which sell at a premium. Venkat says he has trained people in this craft and their works are on sale now.

Also on sale are a variety of craftworks and utility products presented by NGOs who work with less-abled people.

This mela at Citi Centre mall is on for 10 days - from February 7 to 16, through the day.

For more, check the YouTube channel @BadAsssBottlez or the Instagram page @bott.lez.

Are you a home-based crafts person? This call is for you

By Our Edit Team

Are you a home-based craftsperson who would like to exhibit your craft works in Mylapore?

Well, the organiser of the annual Mylapore Festival intends to provide some stalls to Mylapore-based creative people at the January 2026 festival.

For the past 20 years, the festival has accommodated about 20 members of self-help groups based in the city and around at stalls set up along the tank of Sri Kapali Temple.

For the next festival, there is a proposal to include 10 Mylaporeans who create jute bags / crochet work/ tailored goods / utility crafts at home round the year. Those who wish to be part of the festival, may mail 5 lines about their work, attach two pictures and provide contacts too. This invite is not for people who buy stuff from markets and sell them at sales / fetes.

Mail to - mytimesedit@gmail.com. Mention Mylapore Festival in the mail's subject line.

THE TEPPAM

The three-day teppam of Sri Kapaleswarar Temple was held from February 12 to 14. While on day one, the focus was on lord Siva-Chandrashekara, on the next two evenings, it was on lord Singaravelar and his consorts.

The gods, decorated with bright alankarams befitting the occasion, were seated inside the Navaratri mantapam inside the temple and then taken out in procession through East Mada and South Mada Streets and R. K. Mutt Road and then seated inside the brightly illuminated and decorated teppam which did the rounds of the tank.

A group of ten children, who attend religio-culture classes held in the temple campus, dressed up in the various avatars of lord Muruga, took part in the procession inside the temple, every evening, and were later seen seated inside the tank.

There were only a few hundred people inside the tank on day one of the teppam. The numbers multiplied on day two, most of them seated on steps on the western side of the tank, an area which was also brightly-illuminated.

The mahakumbabishekam of Sri Kanchi Maha Periyava Aalayam in Mylapore, held on February 10 crowned the efforts of a Trust, its supporters and devotees.

The Aalayam is located on Pichu Pillai Street, which runs off East Mada Street at one end and Ponnambala Vadhyar Street at the other end.

The trustees had purchased an independent building, some 12 years old, demolished it and built what is a temple that sits inside a building.

“We chose this design to suit the goals of the Trust,” said Ganesa Sarma, one of the three trustees and a former TAFE employee.

“This is to be not only a place of worship but also a place where we will put into action all that the Periyaval has taught us.”

The idea to build a temple took shape when the number of people attending discourses held every month, marking Periyaval’s anusham, at an apartment off North Mada Street, began to multiply. Besides the discourses, processions around the Mada Streets were also held.

Once the Trust was formed (it had five members

Mahakumbabishekam of Sri Kanchi Maha Periyava Aalayam held then, now it has three - the two others being S. Sethuraman and S. Ramanathan), the groundwork for the temple project began.

While the sannithi and temple (24 ft. tall) have been created by sthapatthis in the traditional form, the building around it allows for large gatherings.

Why a temple for the Kanchi periyaval?

Sarma says that the agamas have an exclusive section which elaborates on how shrines can be built for saints like the Nayanmars and Azhwars; that the periyaval also deserves a temple.

Why Mylapore?

Sarma says that when periyaval camped at the Sanskrit College from 1957 to 1959, his discourses drew lots of people and made an impact; these were later published in seven volumes as ‘Deivathin Kural’. He says this series had a telling impact on people.

‘Deivathin Kural’ is now a hugely popular book credited to Sri Chandrasekharendra Saraswathi swamigal, also known as the Mahaswami of Kanchi. It is a collection of his discourses on a variety of spiritual and philosophical topics, delivered during his tenure as the 68th shankaracharya of the Kanchi Kamakoti peetham.

Sarma says that periyaval also had an affinity for lord Kapaleswarar and the ambal here in Mylapore.

“That is why we chose to locate the alayam in Mylapore,” said Sarma.

PLANS FOR THE FUTURE

Looking ahead, the Mylai Mahaperiyava Anusham Trust intends to guide the community to translate into action, the periyaval’s teachings. These include providing counselling to the disturbed and unsettled, arranging annadhanam for the poor and homeless, visiting the sick and disposing of unclaimed dead bodies.

“We are not stopping only with rituals and worship,” said Sarma. “We want to follow the teachings of periyaval.”
