There are a few community groups which make it a point to celebrate Republic Day and Independence Day come what may. In times when the pandemic is still around and meetings are discouraged, the Republic Day events held on Wednesday last by various groups across Mylapore were kept simple and snappy.

Thyagaraja aradhana

Over 100 artistes and rasikas of Carnatic music took part in the Thyagaraja aradhana event hosted on January 22 by Sri Thyagaraja Sangeetha Vidwath Samajam at its premises in Thyagarajapuram, close to the Sri Madhava Perumal Temple.

This is a remembrance of the well-known Carnatic music composer Thyagaraja on the day of his samadhi. Artistes – vocalists, instrumentalists and percussionists – sang/performed the composer's pancharatna kritis as priests conducted abishekam to the image of Thyagaraja in a permanent sannidhi that stands in this premises.

VINCENT'S JOTTINGS

By VINCENT D' SOUZA

Sister Eliza has a big problem on her hands. A problem that has grown over the year. She does not have the money to pay the teachers of her school, she finds that hardly 20% of school fees have been paid this far in the academic year, and she has had to discontinue the sole school bus service that fetched children from the neighbourhood.

This nun and her community manage a high school a few kilometres off Pudurattinam, south of our city. The school caters to children of families of the local kuppams and from villages which live on local agriculture. This is a small school; it educates some 300 students. But it is in deep trouble now. The pandemic is the reason.

Online classes did not work well for senior students. Not everybody possessed a phone. And not everybody was keen to sit in front of a device, rather they enjoyed a long holiday or lent a hand to elders at work. The nuns could hardly do anything for the juniors except invite them for a few informal classes.

When schools were re-opened late last year, many reported back but half of them had to re-learn their lessons and a few chose to stay away. Some had even forgotten what they had studied a year ago.

Meanwhile, only a few chose to pay fee arrears, saying the pandemic had affected them all. The fees range from 300 to 450 rupees and many families were obviously using the pandemic as a convenient excuse. The nuns were in a quandary; they got some help from their headquarters and kept the classrooms open for the seniors. When salaries for the small bunch of teachers who get paid between Rs.4500 and Rs.8000 got delayed, another crisis had to be dealt with. Two teachers quit.

Now, Sister Eliza and her team have a big task on their hands - to prepare a set of 32 students to appear for the Std.10 state examination. And they are praying hard at their daily prayer time in a tiny church, hoping a miracle will happen.

I have been talking to senior teachers at schools in the city run by our civic body. And the state of children's education is in tatters. Over 15% of students did not turn up regularly when schools had re-opened. A good number needed re-learning sessions. Others were not clued into studies.

The well-to-do have adapted to the new normal and have less anxieties. Not the majority rest. And if you go by what teachers suggest, live classes must start now. The state must re-open. And as I write this, that order has been passed.

Old food joints of Mylapore

● As students of Vidya Mandir, we literally grew up at Shanti Vihar - the restaurant's wall was adjoining our school. I would say Shanti Vihar also grew a bit because of us students. Many afternoons and evenings were spent there.

- T. M. K. Karthik

● Absolutely loved Shanthi Vihar, especially dining outside in the open space. Too much construction around it completely started to cramp this wonderful hotel. I have many memories there.

- Ravi Teja Seethamraju

● Thanks to my friends in Vidya Mandir whose annual Project Day we would visit without fail because the visit would mean having great samosas from Shanthi Vihar.

- Anuradha V. Prashant

● We were regulars at Shanthi Vihar ! Bombay Halwa House used to be our daily haunt too, where the samosa and the green chutney is unforgettable. For every birthday treat, our guides (K V Arunachalam for one)

What remains of New Bombay Halwa House

used to take us girls to Shanthi Vihar.

- Shuba Gowrishankar

● Sunday morning guide classes were always succeeded by breakfast visits to Shanti Vihar. I still remember the dimly-lit family room where large groups sat. Bombay Halwa House was in business much later.

Durga Bhavan opposite the Anjaneyar Temple and Chaitra (which is still around) were other eateries we patronised. Chaitra's vadai is iconic, they are the best in Chennai. I remember the days we bought a couple of idlis and vadai all for 10 bucks.

Sad state of Dr. Ranga Road

For the past two months, Dr. Ranga Road, Mylapore is in bad shape. There has been water logging during the monsoon - it was severe from Anand Apartments to Sai Ranga Apartments. This stretch of Ranga Road doesn't have any storm water drain. To worsen the situation, some apartments have piled their construction debris on the footpath.

Local area GCC officials must address our issues.

MY STORY

Recording air quality in Abiramapuram

By GIRIDHARAN KESAVAN

As a tech geek since childhood, I always wanted to have more gizmos than the average Indian home had! I would always take some risks by buying a gizmo before it even became known to people. Sometimes this worked, sometimes it didn't.

An internet firewall for the home network, a remote-controlled ceiling fan for mom, a remotely-operated main door electronic lock.... The list goes on.

The 'firewall' came from the USA - purchased at the local equivalent of Ritchie Street somewhere in New York. Affordable, unbranded, no warranty. But would work. And it has been! Anything coming through the internet has to get past this wall. It protects all computers, smartphones and tablets, smart TVs - anything that connects to the World Wide Web.

The remote-controlled ceiling fan for mom is more local, from Atomberg, which itself was founded by students from a great brand - IIT. Certainly, more expensive than normal fans, but worth every rupee you pay for it. I have the most basic model. More expensive ones come with some sort of an underlight and so on.

Recently, Purelogic Labs offered a free Air Quality Monitor for people willing to host it at their home. This made me jump and grab the opportunity - since it would help a social cause. It would let people know the quality of air in all localities where such devices were hosted.

Purelogic Labs was founded by an environmental enthusiast, Rohit Bansal, who wanted to spread awareness about the air quality to everyone, while making people be a part of the drive. He and his team started this crowd-sourcing approach and gave away the free monitors.

The monitor is about the size of 2 smartphones put together. It has been fabricated and assembled using inexpensive components, at their lab. The free giveaway was for a limited period in September 2018. They may still be giving these monitors, though for a price (which I don't know). Details can be found at <https://www.aqi.in>.

The Tamil Nadu Pollution Control Board has some of their own devices at specific places, but they are not enough to cover all of TN or even Chennai. On the other hand, the crowd sourcing monitors have been distributed all over India. At last count there were over 400!

The device at my home went live in October 2018, and has been 'broadcasting' air quality in my locality (Abiramapuram) ever since. It has helped me see the highs and lows of the Air Quality Index (AQI). It has also shown how continuous awareness campaigns can help. This year, on the occasion of Bhogi, the AQI was surprisingly in the good range. Believe it or not, the highest AQI seen on Bhogi 2022 at my home was 34!

That is not the best AQI I have seen. A few days after the nationwide lockdown, towards the end of March 2020, the AQI was 8 - once-in-a-lifetime reading. So good was the air. AQI of less than 50 is nice to have, and a dream. But it does not come true often.

As the AQI gets progressively worse, we can protect ourselves by wearing masks, particularly when we are out in the open. This doesn't seem difficult, after nearly two years of masking due to the Corona virus.

What next? Air quality cameras, that 'show' the quality of air, and help us to correlate to the AQI. Two cameras are being tested - one in Delhi, and another at my home. We hope they will go live soon.

● Giridharan K. is a Mylaporean for life, tech geek, traveller, foodie and entrepreneur

 Obituary

Former Supreme Court judge, S. Ranganathan passed away at his Mylapore home on January 20. He was 94. He was chosen to be a Supreme Court judge in 1987 and his service here ended in 1992.

He studied at P. S. School and later, at Presidency College and at Madras Law College.

He joined the Bar in 1952, practised and then joined the Income Tax Appellate Tribunal in 1964, and later became its president in Calcutta: his rulings in this post are still recalled with respect for their clarity and depth.

He was elevated as judge of Delhi High Court in 1977, where again his record is still recalled with much respect.

After retiring from the Supreme Court, he was a member of Law Commission of India and later, chairman of the Authority of Advance Rulings.

In retirement, Ranganathan pursued his interest in Sanskrit.

In a tribute that retired judge of the Delhi High Court, justice R V Easwar penned online, he said – The qualities Justice Ranganathan exhibited as a judge were a model for judges and members of quasi-judicial tribunals. His orders were elaborate, but not unnecessarily so; not a word or a thought was wasted, and he wrote what was only that which was apposite or pertinent to the dispute. The structuring of the judgments was so meticulously built, brick-by-brick, with one concept seamlessly merging into the other and logically flowing from the other. It was a pleasure to read them.

Justice Ranganathan is bereaved by his wife and two daughters.

The family's contact – 24994484.

Well-known jeweller Nathella Anjaneyalu Chetty, founder of NAC Jewellers who passed away on January 11 had a crucial decision to make early in life.

His family and elders were settled in the jewellery business in the then hub of the city's business district of George Town - in Sowcarpet. He had worked outside that business and then in it.

But on his mind was a plan to break away, for his own reasons. And he chose to set up his own business in Mylapore.

Why? Because he had absorbed feedback from Mylaporeans who patronised the business in Sowcarpet and realised the potential that the south Madras area offered a smart entrepreneur.

His family had by then moved to Egmore and when Anjaneyalu rented a 100 sq.ft nook hugging what used to be a popular and large kalyana mantap on North Mada Street, the family moved to Raja Annamalaipuram. That was in 1973.

That small store not only sold jewels but also took personalised orders from Mylapore's wealthy families, the jewels designed and produced by traditional makers elsewhere. "Trust and quality were the business' guiding principles," says his grandson, N. Arjun Varadaraj, who is one of NAC Jewellers' directors.

With the business going good and times changing, Anjaneyellu launched the first big store not far from his first, which was later called Silvermine and is so today: it had an exclusive section for diamonds, a first in the city, we are told by the family. Then, in 2007, the bigger store came up just metres away on the same Mada Street, spread over some 20,000 sq. ft. offering jewellery in gold and platinum, silverware and diamonds and everything else in between.

His grandson Arjun says it was somewhere in 2000 that his grandfather slowly took a back seat and made way for the next generation to run the business that saw the setting up of many more stores. Says Arjun, "Till March 2020, he spent at least six hours at the store. Once the pandemic got serious, we asked him to stay at home."

Arjun says his grandfather led a disciplined life, be it at work or at home, kept fit, working on the stationary cycle exercise kit in his room and had his own food habits. Anjanayelu was close to 85 years when he passed away. Days before his end, he had dropped into the NAC store in Mylapore.

To his grandson, he left a few cardinal rules. Give people the best and the genuine and don't go after big sales, be transparent and earn the trust of clients.

Multi-facted personality Priya Kishore passed away on January 10. She was 51.

She was a resident of R. A. Puram and had lived all her life in the Mylapore zone. She was the daughter of well-known theatre and arts personality, the late Raadhu. Priyamvada (her official name) first studied at P. S. Senior, and later at Lady Sivaswami Ayyar Girls and went on to do a MBA course. But even as a teen, she began to anchor radio programmes and, from 1993 to 2002, anchored her own 'Priyamana Neram' one-hour morning programme on All India Radio when AIR sold off slots on its FM channel to private producers.

Priya took off from her father's interests, organising a variety of cultural events, curating them in her own signature style and hosting community events which focussed on women.

Priya Vision, the family's entertainment company hosted shows on Doordarshan and Priya was in the middle of writing scripts, into TV production and promoting special radio series. She also launched a free Thamizh magazine for women, Priyamana Thozhi.

She also gave motivational talks and religious discourses. Mylaporeans recall her discourses given at Saibaba Temple in Mylapore.

She is bereaved by her husband and a son. The family resides on 2nd Main Road, R. A. Puram. Contact - 8056271547

R. A. Puram Post Office moves to new address on R. K. Mutt Road

By Our Staff Reporter

The R. A. Puram Post Office, once located at the corner of R. K. Mutt near the MTC's Mandaveli bus terminus has now opened at a new address on R. K. Mutt, closer to the Mandaveli Post Office.

It is in a new complex opposite the Dina Thoothu newspaper office.

Senior Superintendent of Post, Dhivya did the honours of the inauguration here this January 24 morning.

All service counters for the public - sale of postage articles, Speed Post and Parcel Post bookings, Post Office savings and the rest are located on the ground floor. The first floor is for collection and sorting of mail, for postmen and others' duties.

The PO is open 9 am to 2 pm to the public, Monday to Saturday, with some services curtailed on the weekend. All services offered at the previous address continue here, said a PO staff.

"The old premises had turned really old and we faced flooding issues during the rains," said a staff. "This place is airy and new, good for people and for staff."

At 121, R. K. Mutt Road. The phone line is yet to be transferred here

Instagram stories are no match for grandma's stories

Their hair may have turned grey. Their posture may have stooped. Their pace may have slackened. But there is no replacement for the wisdom and wealth of experience the older generation has. They are an asset, not a burden. With emotional support, elder-friendly infrastructure and specialised geriatric care, they can make meaningful contributions to society for many more decades.
