T. V. Varadarajan decorated with award in memory of film-maker K. Balachander

By Our Edit Team

The main auditorium of Bharatiya Vidya Bhavan was packed on July 9 evening. Most guests had a fill of the high tea the Bhavan treated them to.

This was the evening to honour the memory of celebrated theatre-person, film director and arts patron, late K. Balachander on his 96th birth anniversary. The award is called Iyakunar Singaram K. Balachander Memorial Award, an annual one instituted by Kavithalayaa T. Krishnan, a KB mentee, was given to veteran theatre-person T. V. Varadarajan, just back from a two-month performance tour of the USA.

Varadarajan had a flurry of KB anecdotes to share even as theatre director

“I would make three copies of the script of a new play, place them at the sannidhi of the Vinayaka Temple off Warren Road, then give one to Balachander sir, one to ‘Karthik’ Rajagopal and keep one for my use. Balachander would read the script, call me and offer suggestions and appreciate the parts he liked.”

Many seniors of the theatre world were present at the event. Bhavan’s theatre fest is on till July 12.

VINCENT's JOTTINGS

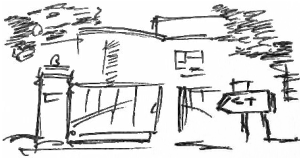

By VINCENT D' SOUZA

K R I S H N A K O T.....

Workers had only the 'I' left to be fixed to the wall.

A new block of apartments has come up in front of ours. Built over time, since the owners of the plot seemed knowledgeable and in no hurry, flats designed for the children of the seniors who must have developed the plot.

I have a distinct image of the house, the plot and the streetscape. No great architecture of the house but mango trees were its natural umbrellas. There were coconut trees too. I recall the lady of the house, till the days she was aged and yet alert, going on slow walks with the help of a maid. She was among the founders of the local women's manram, which traced its roots to the early days of this side of Shastri Nagar in Adyar.

Istri-wallah Baskar was the local, social historian for me; he had lots of stories to share when he took breaks from the heavy metal iron at his cart, his legs weak in illness. I didn't take down notes and left them in my memory bank. There was a very tiny bridge-like structure at our street corner, under which ran the rain-water channel; on it, young men of the first set of bungalows that were built, would gossip and time-pass.

The street on the east side would lead to sandy vastness; later, a State Bank Colony was developed. If you walked into the sand, you would land into casuarina groves and edges of small ponds, and to the sea of what is now Bessie Beach.

Baskar showed me Cart Road, on the edge of our nagar. A sliver that linked up east into the sandy groves; where carts tended to head to pack and carry sand for sale, my guess.

My local walks gave me a picture of Shastri Nagar's streets and lanes. Lanes and some streets that made the western zone of the nagar - residential blocks for the economically weak; this side, plots of 21/2 and 3 grounds where bungalows came up, some with Neo Deco facades, some contemporary styles. I should have shot pictures of all of them.

Streetscapes is the theme of this year's Madras Day project contest for city schools. A contest that isn't really a competition but an opportunity for the young to explore their backyards and understand the old and the new.

We have asked school teams to choose a street with some social history and study its nature, its character and the faces of the houses, old and new, and make a PowerPoint presentation in early August.

If you are a school teacher, I invite your school to this event. I'm sure the teens, their teacher-guide, will enjoy the experience.

Waste dumped near Mandaveli MRTS station

Recently, a massive fire broke out at the waste recycling unit ward 171 in R. A. Puram.

Now, we see waste like an old sofa and cushions dumped alongside Mandaveli MRTS station, where another such unit exists. Such issues must be addressed immediately. Installing CCTVs can help GCC to take action against erring individuals.

Have pucca pavements on Mada Streets

As P. G. Sundarrajan has pointed out in his letter, Mylapore is the preferred place for temple goers and shoppers. My suggestion is that one side of the platform in Mada streets can be kept without encroachment for pedestrians to walk freely to the temple.

Manoj Bhavan may open coffee counter at 5.30am

Manoj Bhavan should ensure that they provide good food and service. If they can open a coffee counter at 5.30am and provide filter coffee at Rs 20/ per cup, it will be welcomed by walkers.

- N. Ashok

GCC, please relay Bawa Street

Bawa Street in Alwarpet was prepared for relaying around 20 days back but so far no action has been taken. A complaint was raised and we got a call from GCC assuring immediate action but still no work progressed.

On Gomathi Unavagam

■ The Gomathi Mess was previously on Nallappan St. At that time, we used to get tiffin at all times and the place was well-managed. Later, it moved close to Mandaveli market and that place was comfortable too. At its current location, it is messy; people are standing on the road to eat.

- Jambunathan K. R.

■ At Gomathi Saiva Unavagam, owner Ramakrishnan welcomes most of his customers by name. He keeps his regular customers informed about the mess holidays through the WhatsApp group. He has not increased the food rates. Gomathi mess' sambar is all about tomatoes and no tamarind.

Lots of diners enjoy Sangeetha's Rs.40 for lunch special

Sangeetha's 40th anniversary celebrations includes its special lunch that its restaurants across the city will offer now; in turns.

On July 9 afternoon, the Sangeetha in R. A. Puram welcomed guests just after 11 a.m. to its air-conditioned space off Kamaraj Salai and laid the meal out on a banana leaf for every guest who paid forty rupees only.

Well managed. Orderly. Well organised. These were the feedback comments from people who sat for the lunch and all of them seemed to have enjoyed the helpings, though limited.

On July 5, priests, nuns and lay people took part in a car procession in which the image of the saint was set in a floral-decorated car and drawn from Our Lady of Guidance Church, Lazarus Church Road, to St Thomas Cathedral in San Thome. This was part of the annual feast of saint Thomas celebrated over five days.

Krishnaswamy Ave resident forced to tolerate sewage overflow

By Our Staff Reporter

Krishnaswamy Avenue, Luz resident Geetha Mahesh is at her wits end, with the local area sewage overflowing around her residence and polluting the area. She says her family has been facing this issue on and off for the past two years and now, it has become serious and persists.

"Because of the problem in the man-hole in the road, my house is affected with the drainage outflow," she writes. "Despite our complaints to CMWSSB, the problem persists."

Local area Metrowater staff have been telling Geetha that this problem is caused by the work on Chennai Metro project in the area.

"They tell us that Metro staff are using a motor to flush out sewage in their workspots and if that stops, the sewage overflows in our residential area," she adds.

Geetha says that the sewage overflow could be because the old sewage pipeline for this area cannot handle the huge outflow from the number of apartment blocks that came up in the area over past years.
