The annual annappavada festival was grandly celebrated at Greenways Road Kesavaperumalpuram Sri Sakthi Vinayagar Temple on Greenways Road, R. A. Puram on May 29.

It is held at the end of agni nakshatram period, during which the presiding deity has a constant 24/7 sprinkle shower or dhara pathram full of panneer (rose water) above the head.

On May 29, the temple was decorated with a variety of fruits, vegetables and flowers. Sumptuous prasadam including curd rice, sweets, milagu vada, mango, bananas and jack fruit were distributed to all devotees.

The temple gurukkal Ekambaram, his dedicated team and the management were in charge.

VINCENT'S JOTTINGS

By VINCENT D' SOUZA

He had this ability to find humour in everything. And he loved crispy medhu vada.

A line from an Obituary advert on P. R. Kumarchandran in 'The Hindu' recently.

I posted it on my 'X' page and it has gone viral. So much so that even my journalist friend Binu Alex took time to write his Obituary in his style and hopes his folks will put this out when he bids goodbye.

A day earlier, the city's film community was paying tributes to one of its rare own. Sathyendra was a man of many parts; knew many Indian and foreign languages, was deep into cinema and acted in many films (including one where he said his was the best role - as a dead body) and was seen at the all the film/ art/ theatre/ literature fests in the city and outside.

Satya died in a government hospital and we didn't know where his family was based. That is when his friends, artistes and others worked the extra hours to locate them and to arrange for a funeral. And posts on him multiplied online, people shared their notes of a man they had seen and heard but didn't know well. A man who also made our city.

We do not have an Obituaries editor at our newspaper like the Guardian and the New York Times have. But featuring Tributes has been integral, from day one of the Mylapore Times.

We certainly want to go beyond the cold details of a person; his / her passion and hobbies, his donation and prized collection; also, his/her love for bajjis and for Ilayaraja's music.

But we find families shy from even sharing details when a resident passes away. And it takes some effort from our side to get details to write an Obituary.

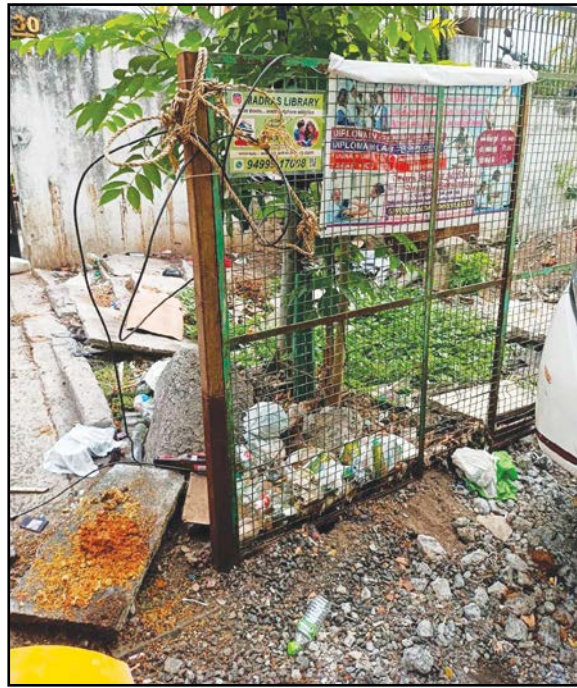

A retired journalist pal has suggested that we may want to launch an online Tributes space for all kinds of people of this city - not just the stars, VIPs and politicians.

Obituaries celebrate life. And like a will, you can even write it earlier in life.

Hawkers take over Mada Streets, inner streets

Hawkers have occupied the pavements on the three Mada Streets. Fast food shops also operate here, mostly after 5 p.m. Even the narrow Ponnambala Vadyar Street is taken over by snacks vendors. How do people who want to walk to temples or the Bhavan's halls manage in this chaos?

This column carries excerpts from Mylapore Times, 1996 onwards. This week, we focus on December 1996.

The many facets of 'Isai Peroli' Awardee S. Sowmya (Dec. 7, 1996)

By A. Kanagam

Mylapore-based Kartik Fine Arts conferred the Isai Peroli award on S. Sowmya, Carnatic vocalist, at a function at the Narada Gana Sabha. Sowmya is the youngest to receive the award.

Her early years of training were under her father, Dr. M. Srinivasan; later, Dr. S. Ramanathan became her guru. She has won several gold medals and prizes for music at school and college. At IIT, she got the prestigious IIT Blue for excellence in academics and cultural activities. Currently, she is pursuing an MA in Music at Madras University. She said she loves to listen to songs by Saigal, Rafi, Kishore and Mukesh. She collects stamps and dabbles in unconventional painting using different kinds of materials. She has travelled abroad extensively.

Big Day for Tamil Theatre Troupes

By Our Edit Team

There was a party-like mood across the plain auditorium of Mylapore Fine Arts Club (MFAC) on June 1 evening. It was a big evening for Tamil, middle-of-the road theatre groups. A day when awards were handed out to the bests in a theatre fest called Kodai Natika Vizha ( 35th edition) that Kartik Fine Arts sabha hosts annually in May.

It could have been a nice gala; the artistes were dressed for the occasion - for it was an evening to applaud actors, directors, stage hands and the rest.

There were a host of awards. 33 in all, with 15 rolling trophies.

Some trophies sparkled in the arc lights. And one winner carried a large cup across the hall long after the ceremony. The man was part of the team which got up a well designed set - a section of a train - on the stage for a play by Legally Yours that didn't pick up speed.

The Dummies Drama team was present in full strength; cameraman and cheer-leaders. They rooted lustily as one of theirs walked up to receive a trophy /certificate; they won the maximum number of awards that evening.

It was also an evening to recognise two stalwarts of theatre with special awards - P. Muthkumaran and Dummies Drama troupe for their play 'Thanim-AI'.

Kartik Fine Arts also presented Rs.10,000 and Rs.5,000 to two theatre groups, Koothapiran's Navabharath Theatres and Three Entertains; they staged multiple shows of their 2025 award-winning plays in the calendar year.

It was an event that should have ended with a party, maybe high tea - letting artistes celebrate, mingle and unwind.

It ended with a play for the fairly packed hall, all seniors.

Y. Gee Mahendra did a promo for his forthcoming film 'Charukesi' and then staged 'Varadu Kutty - Paritchaikku Neramachu 2' - in which he took pot-shots at state politics, from TASMACH to the mango symbol and a little more, in between.

Celestial Wedding

A thirukalyanam is very special at any temple. And so it was at Sri Veeeswarar Temple in Mylapore. As the finale of the annual held its vaikasi peruvizha here, thirukalyanam was held on May 31 evening. And it was indeed a wedding of the gods. The limited space was packed with women, all dressed for the occasion; they packed in at least an hour before the rituals began. The gods were lavishly adorned with fresh flowers and the 'seer' was neatly arranged in front of the gods.
