Christmas may be four weeks away but people who follow some traditions, are up and about to ready the mix for a traditional cake. So Saveria Hotel in Mylapore had its cake mixing event on November 4.

A host of guests and hotel chefs put their hands into a large spread of all the ingredients that make a good cake for Christmas.

Ginger, orange peel, nuts and raisins, black currants, apricot, fig, cherries, dates, besides wine, rum and whiskey to soak the ingredients were in that mix. The mix will be stored and used on Christmas eve to make cakes.

SRI KALA RANGA SCHOOL OF DANCE: ANNIV SHOW ON NOV.16

Sri Kala Ranga School of Dance in Alwarpet celebrates 20 years with an in-house production on November 16: it is themed 'Conversations' and showcases stories and dialogues from mythology featuring Ganesha, Vyasa, Brahma, Saraswathi, Shiva, Nandi, Tenali Raman, Kali and more.

The event on November 16 starts at 6 pm at Narada Gana Sabha's main hall, TTK Road, Alwarpet. It is open to all.

Dr. Srithika Kasturirangan, founder of the school, says, "In today's world of shrinking attention spans, meaningful conversations have become rare. My aim was, through dance, to put children in touch with the magic of good conversation and help them discover listening, empathy, creative expression and wit. I hope this experience will create lifelong memories for everyone involved".

Research inputs from Rajani Arjun Shankar; the production includes stories from different original Indian texts and languages. Anusha Srivatsan has curated the music. Sandhya Ramakrishnan has led the social media and branding.

VINCENT'S JOTTINGS

By VINCENT D' SOUZA

It used to be a two bed apartment.

On Floor 3.

For the past fortnight, it has become a prayer hall.

There are some five, sometimes six who gather here in the sparse living room.

They pray.

There are no statues, no candles or incense sticks, no images, not even what we would all call religious.

They pray in silence. A line or two, spoken mildly punctuates the session that runs for about 55minutes.

There is no singing or chanting. No holding of hands or raising of arms.

The prayers resonate. They float through one window that is kept open and looks to the skies. They pray for rain.

Lots of rain.

It has rained steadily. Areas in the city have got messy. Drains have overflowed. Streets flooded, traffic jams. Dengue has struck many. And the monsoon has not broken yet, strongly.

They pray for rain. They want it to pour. Pour hard.

They are aware that the city's reservoirs aren't even half-full.

Did you note what the city's commissioner said; We want the rain because our water storage has to be full.

They pray in silence. The people in the four apartments that are occupied (the other eight are locked or used off and on), haven't ever asked any of them what they do on Floor 3.

All that some have noticed is that one window in Flat 11 on Floor 3 is always left open.

And one of them swears she saw dark clouds descending and entering Flat 11 through the open window. But residents have waved her away. She had a fall recently. Perhaps, she is given to fantasy.

Tonight, around 8, they will come here to pray.

It rained. And stopped. But it does not pour. Will the prayers be answered?

Create peaceful Mada Streets for temple events

Thanks to Mylapore Times team and photographer Madhan Kumar for bringing to us live, online and in print, the recent Soorasamharam event. The event was conducted very well on North Mada Street. One wishes the Mada Streets were blocked to hold temple events and processions - this would create a quiet, solemn and great environment.

Appreciate Students Report

The Students Report – One Mylapore policewoman's daily life – by student reporter Swathilika – in Mylapore Times depicted well the policewoman's life, the irregular duty timing, difficult tasks and frequent shift of places. In spite of the tedious duties for 28 long years, it is a matter of concern that the policewoman is yet to become Sub-Inspector.

Appreciate MT 'live'

Appreciate the day-to-day coverage by Mylapore Times of the visit and programmes of the Sringeri Peetam acharya while HH was in Mylapore. The 'live' coverage of events on Mylapore Times' Facebook page is a good effort.

My BSNL landline 044-24983141 has not been functioning for the past 6 months but the bills are raised and duly paid by me. I filed complaints over their portal and I also went to their Customer Care centre on Luz Church Road but with no results.

On my third visit, the person at the centre told me to submit a form for change of cable

Jambu's Stories

We enjoy the column by K. R. Jambunathan and the video series on MT's YouTube channel. How we wish we had many old photos to use in each video to make it vivid.

Rewind time at Reunion of St. Francis Xavier School alumni

By M. K. M. Muhil

St. Francis Xavier School, Alwarpet, recently held a Reunion that brought together alumni from as far back as the 1980 batch to the 2016 batch.

The event saw a gathering of old students who have now become grandparents, parents, and young adults, each reconnecting with their beloved alma mater in a warm, nostalgic atmosphere.

The Reunion began with an emotional and reflective session, where teachers took the stage to share their cherished memories of teaching at the school.

Teacher Teresa moved the audience with her words - she reminded everyone of the simple yet profound values that have always defined the school's ethos. The current Headmistress also addressed the gathering.

The main guest was T. Selvakumar, an alumnus of this school and currently an additional superintendent of police with the CBI.

Mageshwari and her friends who graduated in 1993, fondly remembered their school days and their admiration for Annamma teacher.

2012 batch member Tamilselvi, the then school pupil leader, said she misses her school life. Naresh Kumar recalled the days he and his friends stared at the five-star hotel Crowne Plaza, now demolished, and the bustle at the school canteen where the Rasna drink cost just one rupee.

Many alumni we spoke to talked about some of their favourite teachers, including Manimekalai, who taught social studies, Paul Jhansi, science teacher and Brindha who taught computer science.

Kanimozhi, a member of the organizing committee, told me how they leveraged platforms like Facebook, WhatsApp and other social media to connect with friends and coordinate the planning of this Reunion event.

The alumni have also expressed their commitment to supporting the school in meaningful ways.

WHEN KIDS WERE ACTORS IN THE SKANDA SASHTI DRAMA

By Our Edit Team

We have been covering the Soora Samharam spectacle in Mylapore for years. The one of Sri Kapali Temple is our focus often because of the space on the Mada Street that allows the actions to unfold.

The other place we went to was the Sri Veerabhadra Swamy Temple, closeby. The previous priest here, who is no more, used to get into a vesham and lead an engaging spectacle that was personal and alive in the inner streets of Mylapore.

Mylapore's inner streets seem to preserve the old life and traditions.

On a rain-washed Thursday evening the past week, we parked ourselves on North Mada Street: it was packed with women.

We always look for stories unfolding on the fringes; the main drama is obvious and in your face - as the demons did their symbolic acts in front of a serene lord Muruga that evening.

That is when we spotted little boys and girls throwing crumpled paper balls at the images of demons as they passed by.

Madhav, perched on his grand-pa's chest, using a slings to shoot paper missiles his grand-pa has made- some 15 of them.

"If we dont have such action, these kids will never come to such places," Grand-pa told me. The onlookers cheered when Madhav's paper missile actually landed on the Goat!

Yards away was Charan who was jumping up and down on a scooter's seat, held firmly by his father who shared paper balls from his trouser pocket. Charan's excitement continued well after the balls were exhausted.

Elsewhere, we spotted girls and boys, including one with the No.7 Dhoni CSK shirt, hoisted on the shoulders of their guardians, get a clear view of the drama.

And at one end were the Shiva bhaktas working on their music instruments, and there two little boys who were in their own zone.

Lord Murugan that evening was serene, his face curtained by the sambrani-created smoke that wafted up near the ther.

In those kids, some of us may have re-lived their kiddo days, when we used slings made by the Irulas to bring down ripe tamarind or tender mangoes in a backyard.

Rita Ice Cream

One popular space on Royapettah High Road for many Mylaporeans in the past was Rita Ice Cream.

Today, Sathya Furniture store stands in that space. Rita was a popular brand and this place was its factory. As kids, we would head here to buy ice-cream from the push-carts. Ten paise ice cream. There would always be a queue here.

Kuchchi ice cream. All their vandis would head down Kutchery Road to the sands of the Marina.

This area was also home to many famed cinema persons. Sarangapani, T. R. Mahalingam, Pantulu, M K Radha, Ramiah Pillai . . . to name a few . . .

St. Thomas Tamil Church celebrates 166th anniv

By Juliana Sridhar

The community at CSI St. Thomas Tamil Church in San Thome celebrated the 166th anniversary of their parish on October 20.

The celebrations began with a prayer service conducted on October 19 evening; it was presided over by Rev. Dr. M. Gnanavaram and concluded with a fellowship dinner.

On October 20, the Sunday service was held at 7.30 am. Poor people from remote villages were invited and presented with sewing machines, iron boxes and idli cookers to aid their livelihood.

All fellowship groups joined hands to provide some light moments with a skit and singing. There was a Bible quiz and other events.

Rev. Dr. M. Gnanavaram, former principal of Tamilnadu Theological College, Madurai moderated a debate.

The celebration culminated with a fellowship lunch.

The event was organised by the church pastor Rev. B. Devaprasad and the pastorate committee led by its secretary Esther Jebaraj and Samuel Swamikkan.

People gathered in good numbers at the Sringeri Mandiram in Mandaveli to greet the Sringeri Peetam Jagad-guru on his visit here on Saturday, Nov.9.

Though the guru's arrival was delayed, since he had many engagements elsewhere, the acharya got a rousing welcome in the traditional manner, with women leading the way, as cameramen and devotees jostled for vantage spaces.

The acharya spoke to the packed hall of devotees and performed pujas before he headed out.

He had been camping in Mylapore for many days and visited centres the Peetam has connections with.

This inclusive park, recently refitted, looks good

By V. A. Amithaneyan

In Mandavelipakkam's 4th Trust Link Street, is a park that is also good for special children. It is called Infinity Play Space.

The park, which was developed six years ago by Chennai Corporation saw a lot of wear and tear and after much persuasion, has been completely refitted.

STUDENTS REPORT

This is the first inclusive park in the city (another is in Kotturpuram). In the mornings, many adults of this area come for their daily walks; some are seen playing basketball. The play equipment here is for children under 12 years of age.

Many special children come to this park. Right next to the park is a middle school for special children; the students here come to play in the park.

The facilities in the park for special children are - tactile pathway for the visually challenged, platform rotator, an enclosed swing, short slides and soft synthetic floor which causes no injury.

There are also wheels of vehicles fixed on the wall for improving motor activity of the children.

Daniel, the father of a nine-year-old special child we met, says he comes to the park almost daily; He says his son enjoys coming to the park and playing.

In the past, groups of special children had their day out or picnics here. One assumes this is allowed now.

Most of the facilities were maintained very well. The ground was also very clean.

Timings: 5 am to 10 am: 4 pm to 8 pm. Institutional time for special children: 10 am to 4 pm.
