VINCENT's JOTTINGS

By VINCENT D' SOUZA

It looks forlorn. And neglected. But the Karl Schmidt Memorial on Bessie Beach, revived by a dedicated band, is a city landmark.

On the odd days when I'm in that zone, I imagine the effect a weekend Sound and Light Show themed on the Schmidt legend, with other local threads as frills, would have on beach-goers here.

Perhaps, latch on the fantastic war story of the Battle of the Adyar.

I avoid Bessie because most parts of it are dirty and sold out to hawkers. And many beach-goers are loud, un-civic and blinkered. The luxury of 'clean sands clean waters' that the last of the early residents of the Bessie area had is gone.

Last week, a friend pointed me to online posts on a protest Walk that was held in the Bessie Beach zone; part of the 'Why Loiter' campaign - that was held on and off Bessie Beach on Oct.2. It was held to focus on continuing cases of sexual assault of women. Lots of women in their 20s and 30s participated. I wished the placards were also in Tamil. And the participants from a cross section of communities.

But what caught my attention was this - the organisers said this was not a loud protest or a march; it was a quiet Walk, with people holding placards with slogans aligned with the theme of this event.

I often suggest to community groups who are bothered about the destruction of a park, takeover of a playground, long neglect of an area's streets or police bypassing cases of petty thefts, to stage a silent walk-around, with people holding placards highlighting their issues.

Walk around the park, or up and down a street or alongside the playground. For 15/20 minutes.

Yes, you need to inform the local police station. No, you will not be arrested - as long as you don't cross the line. Yes, the message travels loud and clear.

It is not enough to just cast the ballot. Or tweet. Or mail to the CM's Cell. It also needs you, your neighbours and the community to step out when things are very messy, very bad. Hold a Walk. A silent Walk. Hold up banners, placards. Express your sentiments on the shoddy pre-monsoon jobs, the absence of bus stop shelters and the concretisation of the local park.

TANGEDCO, please erect fence around transformer

The transformer installed in Subrahmaniam Street outside Ramprasad Apartments has become a dumping ground for debris, domestic waste and bags of discarded material.

People seem to find this spot convenient to dump. Everytime waste is dumped, it becomes our apartments' responsibility to clear the mess.

The only way to keep the spot clean is to put up a fence around the transformer, as is being done in other places. Besides ensuring safety, it also prevents the habitual throwers of waste around the transformer.

Appeal to Traffic Police

The junction on TTK Road near Kauvery Hospital is a busy one for most parts of the day. Often, bikers and car drivers violate traffic signals and pose a danger to pedestrians here. We request Traffic Police to be on duty here all through the day.

On using phones inside temples . . .

The recent restriction on using mobile phones inside temples was initially implemented strictly. However, a few weeks later, the situation seems to have changed. The enforcement appears to have fizzled out. Even educated people seem to ignore the clearly displayed signage asking devotees not to use mobile phones.

Recently, during Sivasri's concert in Sri Kapaleeswarar Temple, I noticed several people recording her performance on their mobile phones. Could a more practical approach be to prohibit photography and videography in specified areas or during worship, while allowing phones to remain switched off or on silent? Clear signage, public awareness and consistent enforcement may perhaps be more effective than a blanket prohibition that is followed strictly for a short period and then gradually ignored.

Rewards for Cothas team of Mada Street

By Our Edit Team

The women staff at Cothas, a coffee joint on East Mada Street are proudly displaying trophies the team was awarded recently.

“Is it for sports?”, we asked one of them.

“Nooooo! Ours was the highest-sales outlet in the city!”

“And what about the other cup?”, we asked.

“We were awarded for the best practice in maintaining records here,” the staffer said.

This Cothas joint is busy through the day - but gets crowded past 4 p.m. and is such till about 7 p.m. And it is well-maintained - though on a stuffy day, the women staff show strains of tiredness. Catering to waves of coffee-drinkers in the heart of Mylapore is not an easy task.

TWO CONTESTS FOR NAVARATRI. BY MYLAPORE TIMES
By Our Edit Team
This is the final call for two Navaratri season contests that Mylapore Times has organised for this festival season.
The annual Kolu Contest is open to families who reside in the Mylapore zone. This year, the judge for the kolu contest will look closely at the central kolu as well as the theme sets around it. Creative designs and decorations around the kolu will earn extra points.
The second contest is the Colouring Contest for children of this area. Already, 26 children have picked up their sheets.
The colouring sheet, to be collected from Mylapore Times office, allows children to imagine and illustrate a festival setting. Artsheets which display minute details, show streaks of imagination and are well coloured will earn extra points.
Details of both contests are in the Mylapore Times adverts featured in this issue of the newspaper.
The adverts for the contest are posted online - www.mylaporetimes.com

Identify this raga: contest for Carnatic music rasikas on Oct.24
By Our Edit Team
Carnatic music ‘Raga Identification’ competition for rasikas is to be held on October 24 at The Music Academy - Madras at 10 a.m.
Jointly organised by The Music Academy, TAG Corporation and Ramu Endowments, this competition is a unique one designed for rasikas. This is not for the performing artiste or the serious student of music, this is for the lay rasika who can listen to a tune and recognise the name of the song or raga.
The competition was designed by R.T. Chari of the TAG Group.
Each year, a senior musician gives a glimpse of how a raga may be identified. Dr. R. S. Jayalakshmi, Dr. Sriram Parasuram, vidwan Neyveli Santhanagopalan, Dr. Baby Sreeram and others have been resource persons in the past.
This year, after the competition, there will be a brief talk by Dr. Baby Sreeram on Raga Bhava... exploring the myriad shades of a raga.
Preeti Sethuraman, an alumna of the Advanced School of Carnatic Music at the Academy has curated this event.

Church group hosts skills training for children of prisons

By Juliana Sridhar

The Prison Ministry of India, Chennai branch led by its co-ordinator Fr. S. Prakash held a one-day orientation programme for the children of prisoners on September 26 at Saint Raphael's Girls School campus, San Thome.

Eighty children of all ages - students from LKG to Class 12 took part in this event.

Fr Prakash said that this event was conducted for the first time and the good response has motivated his team to host such events on a quarterly basis.

Nuns and volunteers helped to organise the event. A few Good Samaritans came forward to sponsor breakfast, lunch and tea for the children.

The children were given a kit with motivational books on Dr. Abdul Kalam and Dr. B.R. Ambedkar.

They were also given talks on career guidance and on avenues for scholarships. Sessions on personality development were held.

The Prison Ministry of the diocese of Madras-Mylapore Catholic churches consists of groups of laypeople and religious based in many city parishes who reach out to prisoners, their dependents and their children.

Artists of Madras: exhibition at Ashvita's

By Our Edit Team

Ashvita's art gallery is currently exhibiting artworks on the theme - Madras: Between Tradition & Modernity.

States a note from the gallery - Bringing together a considered selection of works from the 19th and 20th centuries, the exhibition traces the changing cultural, social and artistic landscape of Madras through photography, portraiture, painting and objects of material culture.

The exhibition looks at the city not simply as a place, but as an evolving idea — remembered, represented and lived across generations, the note adds.

The art exhibition is on at the Ashvita's Campus, 2nd Street - Dr. Radhakrishnan Salai, Mylapore

Dec. Season 2026: Narada Gana Sabha is improving its audio systems

By Our Edit Team

For December Season 2026, the management of Narada Gana Sabha is collaborating with Mad-rasana to improve the auditorium's audio system.

Sabha's honorary secretary K. Harishankar said that their intention is to provide rasikas with an improved listening experience.

The systems will be in place by late November and will be in use when Kartik Fine Arts hosts its first quarter of the Season's concerts at this venue.

"Rasikas will be able to enjoy the complete experience from December 1," said Harishankar.

The sabha is also tweaking its concerts schedule - the top billing concerts will start by 3.30 pm and the final one will end by 8.30 / 8.45 p.m. The break between the evenings concerts will be lengthened a bit to allow rasikas to snack and for artistes to settle down on stage.

"We are doing all this based on feedback of rasikas who say they have to head home early and that the Chennai Metro project work has disrupted their commute plans," said the secretary.

The sabha also is also mulling on the idea of restricting use of the canteen to ticket holders. "Over the years too much buzz is around the canteens and this affects the rasikas who are keen to be on time for all the concerts and manage a quick bite at the canteen," said Harishanker.

Mandaveli Community Turns Wet Waste into Useful Compost

By Radhika Karthikeyan

What began eight years ago as a routine purchase of composting bins has grown into a sustained waste-management effort at Ragamalika, a gated community in Mandaveli where families reside in 42 apartments.

As a bulk waste generator, the community is required to manage its own wet waste, but residents soon discovered that successful composting needed more than equipment — it required segregation, training and steady participation.

Initially, Ragamalika's core managing team had bought bulk composting bins from My Green Bin eight years ago. The early years were marked by stops and starts as residents and housekeeping staff adjusted to the new system, but the community has been composting in earnest for the past one-and-a-half years.

By 2025, most wings in the complex were segregating waste into three streams: recyclables, wet waste and landfill-bound waste.

Recyclables are handed over to Bintix, while about 20 kgs of wet waste is processed within the community every day.

Earlier, an outside service provider checked the wet waste to ensure that plastic and other inorganic material had not entered the bins before adding microbes to the green composting units.

When waste sorting slips occur, residents are informed and educated on what goes where, helping improve segregation over time.

After three service providers discontinued the work, the community asked its housekeeping staff if they would be ready to take on the responsibility for additional pay — a decision residents now describe as one of their best.

The staff initially collected wet waste from every doorstep, spread it on a tarpaulin to remove plastic and other inorganic pieces, and chopped larger food scraps so they would break down faster. To reduce the time and effort involved, they suggested that buying a chopping machine would help. Commercial machines, however, cost more than one lakh rupees and were beyond the community's budget.

Maithreyi, a resident, then researched online for alternatives and found a fodder chopper made in Pune that cost about one-tenth as much. The machine, purchased through crowdfunding, arrived a few weeks ago and has made the composting process quicker. Smaller pieces of organic waste now decompose faster, producing nutrient-rich compost in less time while saving the housekeeping staff valuable labour.

Ragamalika uses the compost and leachate to fertilise plants within the complex. Some residents also buy the compost for their balcony gardens and house plants, and the community now sells the surplus.

A 5-kg bag of compost costs 125, while a 1-litre bottle of leachate costs Rs.40. Buyers are encouraged to bring their own bags and bottles, and payments are accepted only through UPI.

The project has been spearheaded by the community's Green Champions, the dynamic duo - Hetal Somasundaram and Sumanapriya - whose efforts helped turn a difficult responsibility into a model of community-led waste management.

Nageswara Rao Park: final leg of work is on

By Our Edit Team

If the current pace of work moves forward unhindered, Nageswara Rao Park in Luz should be fully operational at the end of October. But there are still core jobs to be completed; about 15% of the walk paths remain unfinished, mounds of dug-up earth remain and there are still patches across the park that are not ‘green’ and some spots that were earmarked for some fancy designs but may make way for flat land.

People have started to go on walks, one group that looks like a Laughter Club meets often (it plays music on the louder side, to help them groove but this has irritated some park users) and seniors are finding spots where they can sit and converse.

WILL PARK REMEMBER ITS GOOD MEN?

Two granite tablets - one which honoured the men who donated land for this park whose core was a water-body once and once which marked the park’s inauguration - were torn down when the ‘renovation’ of the park started.

Both were dumped inside the campus. The former MLA of Mylapore assured people who cared for these stones that both were safely stored and would be installed at the main gate. As of now, there is no sign of these slabs.

People who value heritage want Chennai Corporation to locate the slabs and erect them. And if they have been carted away with the debris, create new plaques and install them.

BOMMAI BAZAAR BUZZ

By Our Edit Team

You need to give yourself an hour to shop at the kolu bommai bazaar on North Mada Street - this is an informal row of hawker stalls who offer a variety of bommais for the Navaratri season.

And if you are in search of a specific image, then you need time to window shop from the Indian Bank end to the Mangollai end.

There are hundreds and hundreds of bommais. The large ones stand out. They cost a bit - as much as Rs.5000/7000. Bargains are welcome but hawkers can be stiff on the eve of the festival.

We spotted some interesting 'scene' sets of bommais ; market spaces, village square, indoor games arena and the like.

You must look closely at the miniatures; the average equality of work is not great.

Prices drop towards the end of the festival; best time to shop for the future!

Tip: Take a quick look at most stalls on the street, then choose the stalls that offer the best. Most people tend to shop inside the 25 metres line on the western side of the street and leave.

Petty thefts bother residents of East Abiramapuram

By Baskar Seshadri

The bike of a resident of Rama Rao Road, East Abiramapuram was stolen from the campus where he resides, on Tuesday night.

Over the past weeks, people in this area have found common water taps stolen from apartment blocks.

The series of petty crimes are similar to those that have taken place in Mandavelipakkam.

Mylapore Police have taken in a complaint on the crimes and sub inspector Ramalingam has assured residents that his team will act on them.

One resident here said that some youths are seen loitering in the area after dark. He suspects that the thieves choose to target residences where the security is absent and make off with small things that can fetch some quick money.

Young man stabbed to death in Mylapore street

Mylapore Police have formed a team to track three people who are accused of stabbing and killing a young man on Veerabadran Street, Mylapore on Oct.5 night.

The man who was attacked died on the way to hospital.

The accused trio are said to have travelled to the street on bikes, attacked the young man and fled.

Local people said that residents were terrified and did not make any attempts to come to the aid of the victim who lay on the road and the police and ambulance arrived 30minutes after the attack took place.

Police said that the victim had a history of substance abuse and his family had arranged for his treatment. He and his family used to reside in Mylapore and had shifted to Velachery.

B. Canal is choked with hyacinth, cattle sheds are built on it. Is it ready to receive flood waters?

By Our Edit Team

Some weeks ago, Chennai Corporation commissioner G. S. Sameeran inspected the flood prone zones of Mylapore to update himself on preparedness for the monsoon.

‘One stop was on Royapettah High Road, near the P. S. Sivaswami Salai junction.

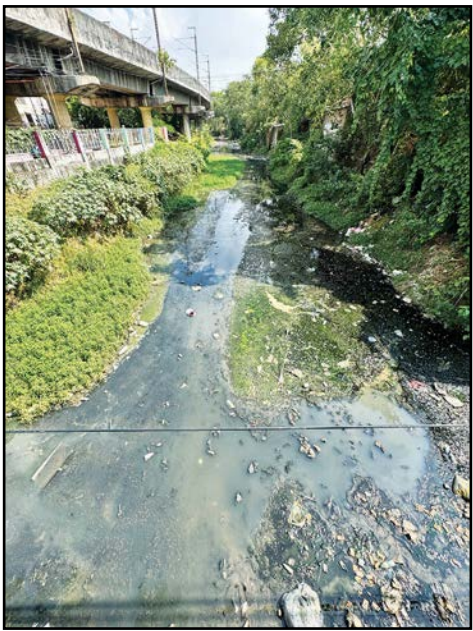

His engineers of this zone and from the headquarters poured over maps and had animated discussions; but did the top officer take a walk alongside the Buckingham Canal to get a first-hand look at its state?

Today, the Canal is loaded with muck and water hyacinth and people say GCC-contracted teams have not desilted the Canal – from the Kalvi Varu Street end to Mandaveli.

“Every year, men used JCBs to clear huge loads of muck and vegetation in the Canal so that rainwater flowing into it would keep flowing downstream. It has not happened now,” said a resident on Kutchery Road.

The scene is depressing on the Mandaveli MRTS station side - local people have built cattle sheds on plots created with debris materials in the bed of the Canal. Over a dozen cattle are reared here. This issue has been pointed out many times but GCC has not taken action. The cattle owners seem to be the lords of this area.

A R. A. Puram resident and community activist says that when he raised the issue of the absence of pre-monsoon desilting work alongside the Sringeri Mutt Road, GCC officials said that PWD now handles this job. Despite conversations with PWD engineers, there are no signs of desilting of the Canal alongside Sringeri Mutt Road.

“Mosquitos are breeding thick in the Canal and are the biggest headache for residents in R. K. Nagar,” the activist said.
