VINCENT'S JOTTINGS

By VINCENT D' SOUZA

Sangeetha called me this morning. She needed help. At the GCC cemetery on St. Mary's Road.

How could the family raise a tombstone on her late mom's grave.

I had to listen first. Civic rules change like the Marina shoreline. Maybe, GCC has stopped people from raising mausoleums and grave stones. With space at a premium, recycling was the answer.

Recently, the civic body decided to have private bodies start and manage graveyards; this has raised much dust and ash.

Have you located mom's grave, I asked Sangeetha.

We lost track of it over the years, she said.

Then how could we raise a tombstone?

I couldn't be sharp on a sensitive issue and we decided to pursue the issue.

A senior resident of Murrays Gate Road called; keen to share her woes of flooding in the area. This was going to be a long story and I was working on a deadline at the desk. She wanted to trace the history of this recurring problem. Have asked her to mail us a crisp note and photos.

When our photographer Madhan Kumar shared a photo of sewage water flooding outside an old school in Mylapore, we posted it on GCC's X page. The quick reply said we must pass it on to Metrowater, the body that deals with such issues.

There are times we at Mylapore Times have to be Agony Aunt, Mylapore's Listening Post and more. People expect us to address issues. Solve them. Talk to officials. Report now.

We would like to do this and more but 3 people can only focus on the core - neighbourhood journalism.

A few simple steps by you will address issues. Amplify the issue when it is posted online. Follow-up.

We encourage citizen journalism. Yes, you want your crafts sale to appear in print. You want your daughter's karate contest win to be featured. You want the festival sale to be up now.

There is space for news and info that matters. Locally. But reportage on issues needs your participation

Fish hawkers. Hawking. And new fish market

The market that GCC has got ready and is being used is a good one for starters; we need such a smart facility. But it has a few key issues that hawkers want corrected and GCC will hopefully address them.

Why are some fishers keen to continue clearing their nets of fish and sell on sands / road side? Because that is the natural process for small fishers. These men put out to sea for daily catch, spend two or three hours at sea, bring the small catch, offer it on sale by the roadside and move on. These needs must also be understood.

The Marina has been the natural reserve for fishfolk. While traffic movement is a priority, their livelihood is also important.

Monsoon woes of Dr. R K Salai 8th St.

Whenever it rains, the drainage water backlashes and fills our house on 8th Street, Dr Radhakrishna Salai. I called up 1913 and placed a request to GCC to send a suction tank lorry. No action was taken, though. The authorities should work to help us out.

Tips for pet owners this monsoon

As a pet owner, I share a few checks to be made before heavy rains.

1. Check if you have sufficient pet food in stock 2. Take the dog for a walk whenever the rains stop 3. If it is raining continuously, keep a coir bag in the balcony for his job. 4. Dogs usually stress hearing loud thunder, so keep stress-relieving medicines handy.

MY STORY

We trained simple women to make bio enzyme-based home care products.

By NEERAJA ARJUN

As the founder of The Canopy Tales, a sustainability store in Mylapore, we were thrilled to receive the Wipro Urban Ecology Small Grant, aiming to make a notable impact on urban ecology.

Through this project, we partnered with two incredible NGOs in Chennai—The Women's India Association (founded by Annie Besant and Dr. Muthulakshmi Reddy) located in R.A. Puram, and Yein Udaan in Chetpet. We trained two of their staff members to batch and manufacture bio-enzyme-based home care products.

It's amazing how this initiative is helping turn everyday waste into eco-friendly cleaners, empowering women with new skills while making a positive impact on the environment.

I approached Padma Venkataraman, the current president of WIA and asked if they would be ready for a collaboration under this program. She readily agreed and said "WIA has always been tirelessly working to keep ecology in the forefront". When she nominated Devika for the training, I had my doubts.

How would Devika find the time between caring for the kids in the crèche and handling all the errands at WIA? Devika has been part of the Women's India Association for 24 years, looking after toddlers aged 1 to 5, whose mothers from marginalised communities rely on WIA's free daycare service at their R.A. Puram premises.

At the first bioenzyme workshop, which kicked off her training, Devika excitedly exclaimed, "Amma, there's really nooru elumichaiyin sakthi in this bio-enzyme!" (the power of 100 lemons!).

The WIA premises is quite impressive, with a training hall, admin area, hostel, a place for making sathu maavu (which my family and I have been faithfully buying), and a tailoring unit. But when it came to finding space for making the cleaners, the crèche was the only room available. Without hesitation, Devika reassured me, "Amma, don't worry! I'll start batching the cleaners once all the children have gone, even if it means working overtime." It was at that moment I knew my years of research were going into the right hands.

Once the enzymes from mixed citric fruit peels (sourced from a nearby fruit shop) and soapnut were ready, I gave her hands-on training to make laundry liquid, floor cleaner, and surface cleaner.

After four years of experimenting with different formulations, I wondered how Devika would grasp everything in just a day or two. But to my surprise, she became a biochemist overnight!

I later asked if she had any feedback on the plant fertiliser we made with mixed veggie peels. With a smile, she said, "Amma, one of our members told me her hibiscus flowers are blooming twice their usual size!" That's the magic of nature!

This project not only supports women like Devika in acquiring new skills but also encourages the use of eco-friendly, natural products that benefit both homes and the environment.

We are grateful to Wipro Urban Ecology for making this vision a reality. These products are lab tested from an NABL certified Lab. Products like Floor cleaner, Laundry liquid, Surface cleaner and Plant fertiliser are available at reasonable prices at WIA premises at R A Puram.

To buy these products, contact Pandian, WIA - 9445081824, 044 - 2493 8907.

Sukra Jewellery creates world's largest silver wardrobe. On show at North Mada St store Sukra Jewellery in Mylapore unveiled what it calls the 'world's largest silver wardrobe, which has officially been recognised by Guinness World Records. It is now on show at its store on North Mada Street.

This unique work was executed to commemorate the company's 45 years in the silver industry.

On October 22, Durga Stalin, wife of the chief minister unveiled the silver wardrobe, of Nithin Kalkiraju, CEO and head of design of Sukra Jewellery.

Nithin Kalkiraju said that every aspect of this work, from the door handle to the hinges, screws, nails, nuts and bolts, is handcrafted in 92.5% pure silver, reflecting Sukra's expertise in silver craftsmanship.

Standing seven feet tall, three feet wide and two feet deep, this wardrobe weighs 158.78 kilograms and is handcrafted from 92.5% silver.

The design features intricate flora and fauna elements inspired by traditional Indian painting styles from around 16th and 17th century CE, such as Pichwai and Rajput. A striking highlight is the fascia, where a peacock gracefully perches on a branch, overlooking a vibrant meadow. Each feather is meticulously crafted to showcase exquisite detail.

The design work commenced in April 2024, followed by manufacturing from July 2024. Under the supervision of Nithin Kalkiraju, a dedicated team of twelve silversmiths completed the special piece in the first week of October 2024, after taking over 6900 man-hours.

Founded by A. Kalkiraju in 1979, Sukra Jewellery has been principally into silver retailing and it is the first in the state to do so.

It holds two other records – the largest silver sculpture certified by Guinness Book of Records and the largest silver clock certified by World Records Academy, USA.

Sukra is at 72, North Mada Street, Mylapore.

Srivathi Stores

North Mada Street had famed stores for clothes and jewels. There were also small ones which were popular.

Srivathi Stores ground coffee beans to provide powder.

The store would dry the beans we gave them and then roast and grind them.

It was not easy to get coffee beans those days.

We would go to the India Coffee store in Jamm Buildings, stand a Q, get a card and get the rationed beans and bring them to Srivathi Stores.

Here too, there would be a Q. It was the preferred coffee powder place.

They also ran a Binny Mills stockists cloth store next door.

How did that shop get the name?

Srinivasan and Parvathi ran this store! They had combined part for their first names.

Swamy & Bros, a ghee store was closeby. That was also a popular place.

On Kutchery Lane, closeby, there used to be a few chekku mills, which extracted oil the traditional way.

Obituary

Susila Achutharaman, a well-known Harikatha and Carnatic music artiste of her time and a Mylaporean, passed away on Oct.7. She was 101 years old.

Born in Chennai on May 10, 1923 to Chellammal and K. Arunachalam, Susila was fondly called Pichai by her family. Having lost two earlier children at a young age and wishing for her good health, her parents thought of her as the God's alms rather than their own and collected alms for her first meal – hence the name Pichai.

She received her first chippalakattai (wooden clappers) from Coutrallam Mouna Swamigal at the age of three after singing Tyagaraja's Santhamu Leka Sowkhyamu Ledu and explaining its meaning to him.

She learnt her first Harikatha "Valli Kalyanam" from Doriaswamy Ganapatigal and gave her first performance at the age of 9.

She started learning music from her mother who was an accomplished vocalist, violinist, vainika, and sitar player, and continued learning under Manakkal Varadarajan.

She lived in Andhra in her early years and performed Harikatha in Telugu in several places including Guntur and Bezawada.

She completed her SSLC at St. Raphael's High School, St Thomas Convent in Mylapore and moved to Coimbatore after marriage. She was an All India Radio A-grade artiste and continued to perform at various sabhas in Chennai, notably giving the inaugural concert at The Music Academy Conference in 1946.

Her music and discourses were characterised by a deep sense of bhakthi, so she was unaffected by accolades.

On her return to Chennai after a tragedy in the family, she resumed giving Harikatha discourses in AIR and local sabhas. Her rendition of Narakasura Vadam was replayed by AIR on the eve of Deepavali for many years.

Among her repertoire were Yaksha Prashnam, Bhadrachala Ramdas, Tiruppanazhwar, Kulasekharazhwar, Tyagaraja Charitram, Sabari Moksham, Radha Madhavam and Nandanar Charitram.

Her performance of Sabari Charitram in The Music Academy's 36th conference in 1962 had to be moved from the temporary stage to the main hall to accommodate the large crowd that attended.

The bhajana ghoshtis she led in the 1950s and 60s at her home in Mylapore gave a platform for several young musicians who went on to become stalwarts in their fields.

Amongst her mentors were advocate Sundaram Iyer and later Mannargudi Sambasiva Bhagavathar. She is known to have popularised and taught Oothukkadu Venkata Kavi's Rasa Sabdam to many aspiring vocalists in the early sixties. She continued to perform till she was 60, and thereafter maintained a deep interest in both Harikatha and music as long as she lived.

She was gifted with a powerful voice and used vivid language, imagery and music to immerse her audiences in the stories she told. She was a pioneer in art and in life – one of a few women in the male dominated field of Harikatha and one of the first women to drive a vehicle in Coimbatore in 1947.

She was resilient, generous with her art, gregarious, and independent. She was the recipient of the Gana Kala Shiromani award from the Mannargudi Sambasiva Bhagavathar Trust.

This R. A. Puram family's kolu was delayed. Now, the themed kolu – Shanmathas established by Sri Adi Shankara, is open to guests

By Our Edit Team

The Srinivasans of Srinivasa Avenue in R. A. Puram had to delay their Navaratri kolu for personal reasons.

But they did not let the hiccup stand in the way of continuing a tradition of themed kolus. The theme – Shanmathas (six forms of worship) established by Sri Adi Shankara. The family says that the planning for the stories, background models and flex printing and purchasing of bommai started weeks ahead of the fest.

They said they referred to corresponding spiritual texts and the theme and storyboard was developed.

Said Guruprasad Srinivasan, "For over 12 years, my mother has been preparing theme based kolus and some of themes have been Chaturthi mahimai, Kandhapuranam, Bhagavatham, Lalitha sahasranamam and Shaivism."

This year's kolu is themed 'Shanmatha Sthapanacharyar' based on Madhaviya Shankara Vijayam by Sri Vidyanarya and revolves around how Srimad Adishankara rejuvenated Sanatana Dharma and established Shanmathas or six modes of worship.

"My mother, Rohini Srinivasan explains the concepts and stories to all the guests. All the preparations are done as a team by the entire family and friends," said Guruprasad. "My mother believes that celebrating these occasions are excellent opportunities to carry the rich heritage and culture to next generation"

The kolu is still on display for guests till next Wednesday.

But the family requests that guests call before they drop in.

Sewage pipelines being laid for colonies off Marina Loop Road

By Our Edit Team

New sewage pipelines are being laid in the colonies off Marina Loop Road. This project was approved by TN Urban Habitat Development Board

Local ward councillor Amirda Varshini says that the sewage pipes were laid as a temporary solution post 2004 tsunami, which clogged over time.

She said the existing drainage system could not handle the load as the density of people in the colonies increased.

"Chambers in coastal areas were damaged due to erosion risks. So we have reconstructed the damaged manual doors and focussing on improving the sewage flow using the motor located in Srinivasapuram," said the councillor.

Festival buzz low in Luz as Metro-construction impacts retail business. But stores now open want Mylaporeans to shop

By Our Edit Team

When Mylaporean Bhanu went out on a short shopping spin in Luz Circle, she realised that the zing and the lights were missing. And the festival of Deepavali is just over a week away.

“In two shops that I visited the staff were just sitting and had glum faces,” said Bhanu who resides off Kutchery Road and has been in Mylapore for over 40 years.

“They told me- Metro has finished us,” said Bhanu.

In some stores which used to be bustling spaces, there was not even a single shopper the past Thursday evening.

“Places that were minutes away from our home seem one kilometre away now, so who wants to shop?,” asks Mohan. The kilometre exaggerates the diversions that Mylaporeans have to cover to barricade indicate the pathway. In a sense, they also inform people these stores are alive, so please do shop here.

The shops which chose to remain even as Luz looked like a section of industrial estate, with roads on all four sides barricaded, blocks shop at their regular places.

“Please tell people that we are still alive!,” says Girish of Rex Fashions, once a go-to readymades destination on Luz Church Road. Now, barricades for the Metro work cut off the facades of his and many other stores here.

Rex flex banners on the demolished or shut and only walkways through messy paths.

But their owners are holding on. - Be it Hari Agencies, Gani Dresses, Children’s Choice, Mohan Dress, Nalli, Sri Meenakshi, Sivanmalai Andavar . . .

Even regular shoppers have chosen to skip the zone.

“Only some longtime clients who like our stuff come to shop,” said a manager of a popular store.

Luz / Mylapore has always drawn people from all over; not just to buy clothes but to do A to Z shopping - sweetmeats and masalas, temple visits and home-needs.

Said Ratna Mukherjee, “A few weeks ago I was trying to get to the Ramakrishna Mutt and it was a nightmare and I thought that I will not go that side unless I have to.”

Luz charmed Mylaporeans because it has been a local attraction. Said Chitra Sivakumar, “Felt very bad to see Luz corner so deserted. Shopping in Luz especially for Deepavali used to be such a pleasure and the whole place used to be so colourful and lively.”

Even the pavement hawker stalls seem jaded. These were go-to places for families with limited or low incomes, rushing here to shop on festival eve - footwear, fancy chains, clothes, belts.

HSBC India hosted the 22nd edition of the “Helping Hands” mela – an endeavor to keep communities at the heart of the bank’s overall sustainability efforts.

This store is open 24 hours, 365 days. In Mandaveli

By Preetha K.

Ebenz Family Supermarket on Venkatakrisna Road, Mandaveli is open round the clock. It also has special offers on groceries and household products.

So why open 24 hours? "Many people are nowadays leaving for work at 6 a.m. There are others who come for morning walks to the beach at 4 a.m. and walk to pick up stuff on their way back. VIPs also prefer to shop when there is a smaller crowd and they come to the store either late night or early mornings," says A, Gerald Ebenezer, managing director of the supermarket, who also runs hospitals, medical centers and an NGO.

"These factors encouraged me to keep the store open round-the-clock, just as it is in foreign countries," he adds.

The supermarket also has home delivery options for areas within 5 km radius.

This five-year-old store stocks groceries, fruits, vegetables, medicines, puja items, toys, office stationery, household items, gift items and many more daily needs, in the three floors of the building.

Gerald, a chartered accountant, says that customers have started walking in late at night "I have 15 staff members who work in shifts and I take good care of them," he adds.

Ebenz Family Super Market is at 48/42, Venkatakrisna Road. Ph: 24935000/ 8939565000

Mylapore Fund clients seen on South Mada Street as they await their turn to access lockers

Mylapore Fund issue: some people allowed access to lockers

By Our Edit Team

About 40 clients of Mylapore Hindu Permanent Benefit Fund were able to access their lockers after police arranged for it on Saturday.

The Fund office has been sealed since the day its directors were arrested in a case slapped on them for not returning the monies of its depositors.

The lockers access process was organised and processed by staff of the TN Police Economic Offences Wing (EOW) who were present.

Many Fund clients had been requesting this since they wanted their things in the lockers urgently to meet various personal needs.

It is not clear when other locker clients will be allowed access. Depositors said that 60-plus people have sought access to lockers.

Meanwhile, a spokesperson of the Mylapore Benefit fund Depositors Association said that bail has been refused to the Fund's MD and his associates in the lower court and the arrested have sought relief in the Madras High Court and this plea will come up for hearing on Oct.29.

He said that the association will ask the court to direct the MD to outline how and when he intends to return the deposits and interest earned.

THEME KOLU THAT WON PRIZES

Loga bhagyalakshmi Srinivasan

Today, it is not easy to spend time to create themes around the main, traditional kolu. But some families make that effort and this was seen in the entries for theme kolus submitted to the annual Mylapore Times Kolu Contest.

In fact, long after the contest was over, we got a call from S. Srinivasan of B-15, Shree Apartments on Srinivasa Avenue Road, R A Puram. He wanted us to visit and see the theme he had created - Shanmathas (six forms of worship) established by Sri Adi Shankara.

Here is what our winners created, in brief.

While S. Geetha of Mandaveli created a temple and kulam scene, Akshara Ramesh created a village life scene, cricket play and temple zone.

Yoga Bhagyalakshmi of Mandaveli has a triple set - Vande Bharat, Kapali Temple zone and the new Kilambakkam bus terminus.

Veteran kolu setter, Vijayalakshmi Sailapathi focussed on themes on Ramayana and Krishna Leela and a frisbee play scene on Elliots Beach.

Four sub-themes on the 'Nava Prakar' was the work of Smirutula Kumar of Mylapore, Prema Narayanan of Mylapore neatly set up temple processions of various deities on the palaquins and R. Anusha of R A Puram focussed on the Paris Olympics.

R. Girija and her husband created a sound and light show, themed on Kulasekara azhwar, CIT Colony's Vyjayanthimala had a wedding feast, a Thiruneermalai temple zone and scenes of war in the world.

Alwarpet's Rashmi Krishnan focussed on 'Pancha Bootha sthalangal.

Special Sunday at this church. Differently-abled were honoured

By Fabiola Jacob

A 'Sunday for people with special abilities' was observed on October 20 at CSI St. Thomas English Church in San Thome. Students from the nearby CSI School for the Deaf and CSI School for Autism participated in the morning worship service and performed a choreography.

The church community is an inclusive and welcoming one, and this was evident in how differently-abled members from the congregation also played an active role in the service on Sunday.

Members from 'Mission to the Blind' – a Christian organization that works among the visually challenged people in India with a goal to bring them into the mainstream – also joined the worship, to share their experiences.

A Jaikumar, the national executive director of Mission to the Blind preached a sermon on 'Dignity and dependence'.

Bags, purses, pillowcases, fridge covers and other articles made at the Mission to the Blind's vocational training centre at Madhavaram were on sale after the morning service.

Tree, branch crash on busy Mylapore road. People want GCC to check state of avenue trees

Senior citizen K R Jambunathan and his wife had a narrow escape recently when what seemed to be a dead branch of a tree off Sri Mundagakanni Amman Koil Street came crashing down.

The tree is located inside the Angala Parameswari Temple. The branch, a big one that had blocked traffic, was removed by civic staff soon after Jambunathan reported it in the WhatsApp groups of the local MLA and ward councillor.

Jambunathan says that a week ago, a tree by the roadside here had come crashing down.

He says that GCC needs to ask its staff to do another check of avenue trees and see if they pose a danger after the first set of rains.
